Supports Collins

Dear Editor:

One year ago the City Council recognized the need to centralize the ever-increasing responsibilities of a complex city government. As society and life in our beautiful community progressed, so did the sophistication and complexity of administering the day-to-day business of our city government.

In answer to this pressing need, the position of City Administrator was created, and after a lengthy and thorough search, a most qualified professional administrator was found to fill the vacancy.

Today there are those who question the wisdom in the creation of this post. Since 1909 when the city of Stanton, Va., created the first full-time city administrator many people have faced this same dilemma. They have, however, recognized that there is no more forlorn spectacle in the administration of government than an administrator possessed of statutory life and armed with political orders, and dedicated to professional public service, yet stricken with paralysis through the deprivation of necessary authority.

Efficient and professional administration is dependent upon many factors: character, education, skill and adequate authority. Our administrator is lacking in none, but there are those who now need to deprive him of the latter. Adequate authority is the focal point of efficient and professional public administration in Carmel today.

If the city administrator is to be charged with the responsibility of implementing and administering the policies dictated by the council, he must be granted the authority commensurate with that responsibility. Primarily he must have the authority to select and appoint his own staff.

As it is the administrator's responsibility to conduct programs, implement decisions, and administer the orders of the council, it follows that the selection of his subordinates, with whom he must conduct this business, must be within the authority of his office.

I urge the people of Carmel and the City Council to listen. The life blood of city administration is adequate and sufficient authority. Do not paralyze your administrator, do not create that forlorn spectacle of public administration history has so amply warned us of.

Dear Editor:

As a long distance Pine Cone reader, I was not shocked by the nude on your front page or cover.

However, that was better than the obscene picture a few months ago with King Norberg and his cane.

Council actions fine

Dear Editor:

I used to feel so encouraged when the council chambers were filled with concerned citizens and always hopeful they would return for the next council meeting. But, alas, it was never to be.

Unfortunately, I found the "concerned citizens" to be puppets doing a one-night stand. They all had had their lines written for them and recited them as directed with no idea of past performances or future.

If all these same people had been to past council meetings they would have realized the May 7 agenda item "City Administrator's Job Description" was exactly that. At the time Mr. Collins was hired it was a departure from that of Mr. Bayless, and it was thought that after a year the council would re-evaluate their decision and decide if the new form of city government was right for Carmel.

They also debated what Mr. Collins would be called, as his position seemed to be more than a city administrator and less than a city manager. However, for the time being, administrator was decided upon.

The action taken in February and again May 7 was exactly what was decided upon almost a year and a half ago: re-evaluating a job description that was new to Carmel city government.

Perhaps if Councilman Brunn had attended more council meetings prior to his being elected and would do some homework regarding past decisions of this and former councils and do his reading of agenda items before council meetings rather than during the meeting he would find it unnecessary to lose his temper and could behave in the gentlemanly manner that we have all become accustomed to and expect of our elected officials.

Likes voluntary prayer

Dear Editor:

What has become of us?

An amendment sponsored by a United States Senator in the performance of his duties is called a "mischievous measure." Voluntary prayer is described as a violation of individual and family rights.

What greater tyranny can there be than calling voluntary prayer a "violation of individual and family rights"? Since when does anything voluntary violate anything? Suppressing free will—the "voluntary" aspect of life—indeed violates human nature.

Since when is prayer only an individual and family right excluding the church community as well as the school community?

Education implies the student's submission to a teaching. Another word for student is "disciple." He must learn the way, the method. Another word for way and method is discipline. And he must learn a subject matter, another word for this again is discipline. Thus, the word discipline stands for the "how" and the "what," and the teacher is the interpreter and the master, the living example of the value of the goal of learning. His right to prayer—if he wishes to exercise it—must have precedence over any student rights if the student is to be led to a higher level of understanding.

More amendments for school prayer and a federal spending limit are being proposed. There must, by necessity, come a time when the ration of amendments to the original text will cause two-thirds of the states to invoke the constitutional clause providing for a constitutional convention which must undertake the resetting of the foundation.

The Constitution was more prayer than fact in the beginning—but the denial of this fact is tantamount to placing man (the founding fathers) above a being supreme to man. This furthermore ignores the fact that the existing word inflation by amendments, laws and regulations is a sign—among others—of the perversion of the original words and a sign of the loss of altruistic motives.

It is symptomatic that "voluntary prayer" is not seen as freedom of speech but as a violation of individual and family rights; that the school is viewed as the state interfering with religion rather than as a community promoting religion.

Religion means to be in league again (re-ligio) with God. All education originated from this acknowledgment of a higher level to which man can aspire. Without this acknowledgment there is no motivation for upward movement. Man would be left only with motivation for fragmentation or downward movement. When we started talking of multiversity instead of university we left the upward course, discarded the humanities and embraced the short- or near-sighted natural sciences.

If these arguments are too philosophical, then this country in the name of freedom should acknowledge the law of eminent domain, which established jurisdictions of parents over children, house owners over their houses, property owners over their property, and, analogously, should still have some for teachers over their classroom. The widespread interference of government with this principle of eminent domain paralyzes not only education but also business and even the government itself due to the fact that Congress interferes with the administration by being prescriptive rather than restrictive.

Only the latter action is in conformity with the idea of checks and balances as envisioned by the constitution.

Council should be censured

By AL EISNER

ONCE AGAIN, I've got bad news and good news for you.

The bad news is that our city government is in disarray. Department heads and the rest of the city staff are in a state of shock. We might lose a very talented city administrator. Our elected city councilmen are at each other's throats. A lot of serious matters remain unattended. Tax revenues are shrinking. Taxes might have to go up.

The good news is that there are only 10 months left until the next municipal election. At that time, the voters can express their opinion of how the city has been managed by the incumbent councilmen and, perhaps, elect people who will be more responsive to the wishes of the people.

Monday night's council meeting was a disgrace. Ignoring the voices of the dozens of people who turned out in support of City Administrator Jack Collins, Mayor Norberg and his two henchmen, Les Gross and Mike Brown, voted to re-open the question of just how much power the council is willing to delegate to its city administrator.

Brushing aside the entreaties of Councilmen Brunn and Arnold, the trio voted to instruct the city attorney to draft an ordinance that would strip Collins' powers to hire and fire city personnel.

Since Collins has stated repeatedly that he would resign if these powers were taken away, his job hangs in the balance.

Councilman Brown apparently harbors a grudge against Collins. As the author of the report that recommended restoring power to the City Council, he should have explained his reasons. Instead, he sat mute Monday night, despite repeated requests to offer reasons why we should return to a system that didn't work very well in the past.

If the citizens of Carmel saw with their own eyes the shocking performance Monday night, they would vote to toss Gross and Brown out of office.

They made it plain by their words and (in)actions that they want to get rid of Collins. They don't have the guts to fire him. So, they turned a deaf ear to the electorate and took a circuitous route to accomplish the same purpose.

AT THE HEART of the matter is a sharp difference of opinion over who shall be responsible for the conduct of the city's day-to-day business. The League of California Cities, and a minority of the council, states that the elected City Council should act as a board of directors. The council should set policy and hire the best people they can get to manage the city's business.

Norberg and his two lackeys want to keep all the power for themselves. Unlike many other elected officials, the three fellows seem to have plenty of time to pry into the minutest city matters. Councilmen Brunn and Arnold disagree sharply. So do I.

How will we ever be able to recruit talented citizens to serve on a City Council that expects its members to work virtually full time without pay?

Norberg, Gross and Brown are not trying to "Save Carmel." They're making a power grab. They ought to be censured for their actions.

'Council is deaf to desires of the people'

Dear Editor:

In February of this year, we spoke at the City Council meeting against the proposal to alter the office of city administrator. Our stand was then and is now adamantly in support of a professional public administrator unhampered by the individual ambitious drives of amateur politicians.

We recognize that a representative governmental body derives its authority from the people it governs. When an elected official, or three, believes that the "sole authority in the city resides in the council" it is time for a change. At the very least, the council must recognize the supreme law of this land, Article X of the United States Constitution, which reserves the power to govern in the people.

We did not speak out at the last meeting of the council, not because it was "politically unwise" but because the present forum is deaf to the opinions and desires of the people.

Will Collins quit?

By BRUCE HOROVITZ

CARMEL CITY ADMINISTRATOR Jack Collins says he does "not know" if he will continue to fight for his job.

Collins confessed he has considered quitting, when questioned by the Pine Cone Tuesday morning. "I don't know what I'll do," Collins said. "It depends on discussions with my family, my friends and a close look at the ordinance," he said.

The ordinance which Collins referred to is now being drafted by City Attorney George Brehmer. Mandated by a dramatic 3-2 Carmel City Council vote Monday evening, the law would strip coveted personnel powers away from Collins.

"I don't know if they want me to quit, if they want to punish me, or if they really want to change the substance of the city's form of government," stated a discouraged Collins, Tuesday morning.

Could he continue to work for a council that no longer supports him?

"I'm not certain they don't support me. They are supporting a change in our city government," Collins replied.

The proposed law will face a first reading when the council meets on June 4. Brehmer said he did not have time to draft the legislation for next Monday's meeting.

If the final vote follows the present pattern, by mid-July Collins will lose his authority to hire and fire department heads.

July is the two-year mark in Collins' tenure here.

COLLINS STARED BLANKLY Monday evening, as he listened to a council majority wrestle away the powers presented to him when he was hired.

Carmel Mayor Gunnar Norberg, and Councilmen Mike Brown and Leslie Gross formed the council bloc that could not be shaken. All three have apparently lost confidence in Collins.

Only Councilmen Howard Brunn and Helen Arnold now back the chief administrator. But their two votes were futile Monday evening.

AFTER THE SESSION, Brunn put to rest speculation that he would quit if the council pruned away Collins authority over city personnel.

"I'm not going to make the mistake of resigning in heat," Brunn told the Pine Cone after the meeting. "It would give the mayor an opportunity to appoint a rubber stamp like he did when he appointed Gross," replied an angered Brunn.

Mrs. Arnold also considered bowing out of office.

But she decided to stick it out. She said she was outraged over phone calls Brown made last week to Ontario, Ore., city officials, where Collins was formerly employed.

"I was so ashamed, my first impulse was to resign in protest. But then a stronger thought prevailed. Someone had to remain to vote in the best interests of the people of Carmel," she said.

There is a possibility that the hot issue could evolve into a ballot question in November.

The council instructed Brehmer to investigate that possibility. It was suggested by Art Strasburger, the chairman of Old Carmel. Even Brown said that would be fair, "if the residents want it."

BUT THE COUNCIL cast its own ballots Monday evening. Both losers were incensed.

Brunn prodded Brown to state the "intent" of the proposed ordinance revision.

Brown sat mum.

The Pine Cone asked Brown that same question after the session. This is how he replied:

"What we're talking about is how the city administrator is working with the council. It is not inappropriate to find out what will fit best," Brown said.

Again, Tuesday morning, Brown tried to clarify his intent. "We have worked with the one ordinance for two years, but the old one worked for 40 years. This is finding a common ground between them," he said.

The Pine Cone asked Brown if he wants Collins to quit.

"I simply want to find a point where the council can work best with the city administrator," he replied.

Why did he sit virtually silent during the three-hour ordeal?

"As I sat there and Howard (Brunn) kept firing away, I felt I didn't have to be on the defensive," Brown answered. He said it was not the right "environment" for comment.

Brown ignored bitter interrogation from Brunn and Mrs. Arnold. Mrs. Arnold compared Brown's actions to the "character assassination" promoted by Senator Joseph McCarthy, during the 1954 senate investigations.

Mrs. Arnold's language was unusually tough. She sent silence through the council chambers when she posed to Brown, "Young man, have you no shame?"

Brown's reply: "I think we have a motion to vote on."

IT WAS BROWN who authored the ad hoc committee report, approved by the council Monday evening. The other committee member, Norberg, said he "blue penciled" it.

It appeared that Norberg, Brown and Gross had sealed their votes before the session.

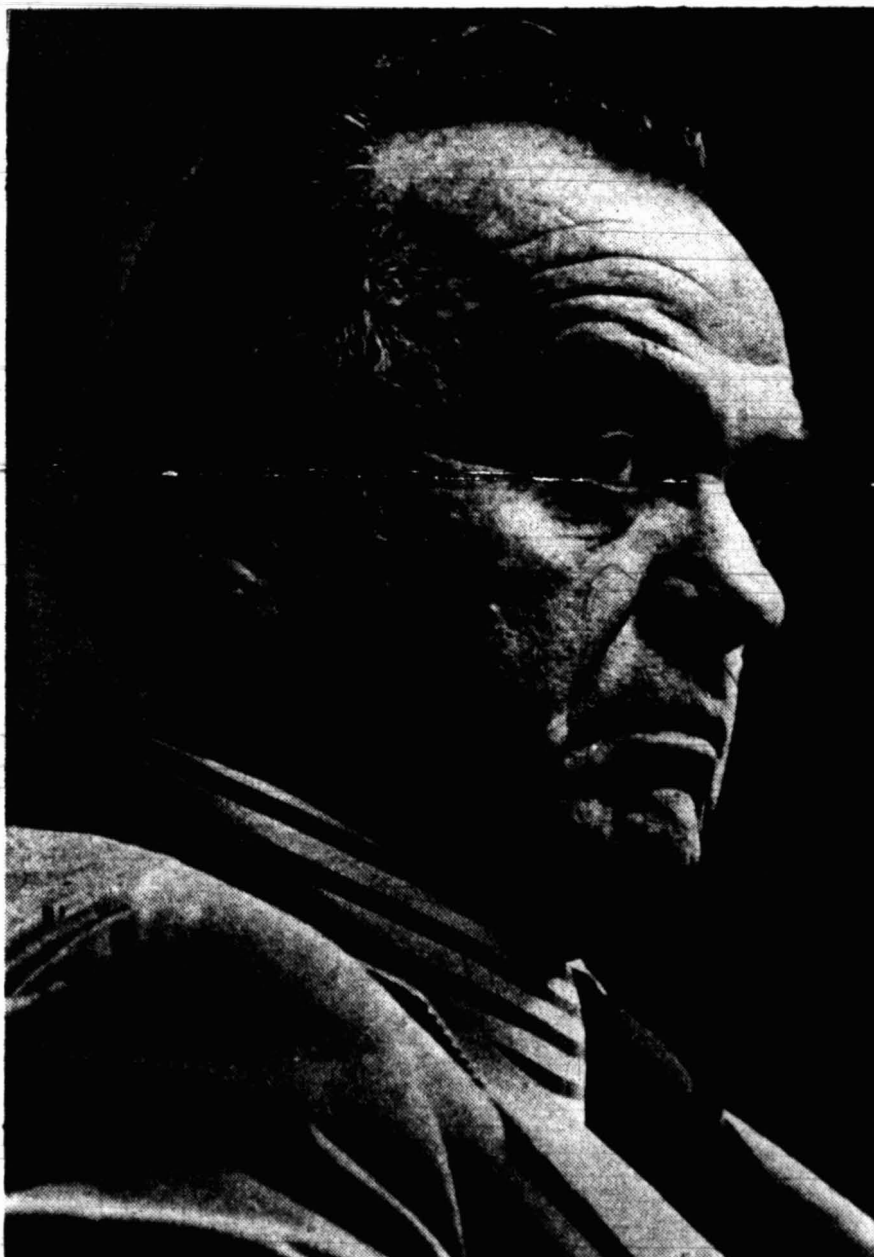

Gross, later on, distributed a letter expressing his view. It said, in part, "This proposed change ... will give the council ... ongoing prevention from staff abuses."

Brunn tossed his copy aside. "The press can have my copy. I

CITY ADMINISTRATOR Jack Collins says he does "not know" if he will continue to wage the battle for his job.

COUNCILMAN HOWARD BRUNN wants Collins to keep his personnel authority. "I would not have run for council under the proposed form of government," he said.

CARMEL MAYOR Gunnar Norberg would inherit some of Collins' personnel authority. "The city administrator is supposed to do exactly what the council wants to see done," he said.

Hackman buys house in Carmel

WILL SUPERMAN'S arch rival move to Carmel?

Gene Hackman, who recently starred as Lex Luthor in the multi-million dollar movie, Superman, has purchased a Carmel home and received permission from the Carmel Planning Commission to build a guest house on the site.

The inside of the house, located in the Carmel Sand Dunes area along the Carmel Beach, has been gutted and will be completely remodeled. Hackman has hired Carmel architect Richard Barrett to oversee the job.

Hackman purchased the home last August. Although completion of the remodeling may be one year away, it is speculated Hackman may use the house only as a vacation home. One source close to Hackman stated it is "doubtful" the actor will make it his permanent home.

HACKMAN received permission from the Planning Commission to construct a guest house on the site, when the commission met on April 25. Hackman did not appear at the session, but was represented by Barrett, the architect.

The city has not yet received an application for the proposed remodeling.

Hackman owns three acres of property on the Carmel-Pebble Beach boundary. Two acres are in Carmel. The house and proposed guest house would both be located on the Carmel portion. One acre is in Pebble Beach.

Because part of the property is in Pebble Beach, Hackman will need a permit from the Pebble Beach Corporation in addition to commission approval. The project will also be reviewed by the Regional Coastal Commission.

An acacia tree will have to be removed to make way

FILM STAR Gene Hackman, seen here in his role in Zandy's Bride, has purchased a house in Carmel. Because it straddles Carmel and Pebble Beach, he must thread his way through the Carmel Planning Commission, the Coastal Commission and Pebble Beach Corp. before he can proceed with plans to build a guesthouse on the property. A source said it was doubtful that Hackman would make the house his permanent residence, but that he expected to use it as a vacation home.

for the guest house. That still requires approval from the Carmel Forestry Commission.

HACKMAN PRESENTLY LIVES in Beverly Hills with his wife, Fay. They have three children.

The family moved briefly to Pebble Beach last year, when Hackman purchased Merv Griffin's former home. He moved back to Beverly Hills earlier this year. The home formerly owned by Griffin and now by Hackman is still for sale.

Hackman, 48, catapulted to stardom in 1972, for his role as Popeye Doyle, a narcotics detective in The French Connection. He won the best actor Oscar for that role.

A sequel, The French Connection II, was released in 1975.

He also received Academy Award nominations in 1967 for his role in Bonnie and Clyde, and in 1970 for another role in I Never Sang For My Father.

Hackman is a fan of motorcycle and sportscar racing, and has entered amateur events at Laguna Seca.

Surfer charges Carmel Beach is 'a mess'

By BRUCE HOROVITZ

THE CARMEL BEACH is drowning in negligence. That is what a 15-year resident charged last week at a stormy meeting of the Carmel Forestry Commission.

During the heated May 1 session, Marc Cross accused the commission of handling beach projects "stupidly."

Because Carmel Beach is classified as a park, beach improvements are reviewed by the Forestry Commission.

Cross charged that beach maintenance is poor. He also criticized the proposed beach walkway and erosion control program as "a waste of time and money."

He asked the commission to dump the proposed projects, and instead, to recommend to the City Council employment of another beach cleanup worker. One worker presently cleans up the beach twice a week.

But the commission wouldn't budge. Commissioners reacted angrily to Cross' criticism, and told Cross to voice his complaints to the Carmel City Council.

A disgusted Cross stomped out of the room. Commissioners were struck dumb.

ALTHOUGH CARMEL CITY Council meetings are often hotbeds of protest, forestry commission meetings are commonly quiet—if not dull.

This session, however, pitted a 27-year-old resident against five commissioners, three of whom are over 70. Cross demanded immediate action for clean up of debris on Carmel

View through a Grapestake Fence

NOW THAT SANDY SWAIN has reconsidered and will accept a second term on the Planning Commission, there is something that I am compelled to say: I guess we'll just have to wait a bit longer for her Swain song.

MAYOR NORBERG is still disputing the location of his office at City Hall. He wants it to extend over the parking lot, but the architect says "no way," as not only will it not be space saving, but expensive. However the Mayor is not pleased. He wants it all to hang out.

THE MAYOR'S APPRENTICE

(with apologies to Mickey Mouse)

I AM HORROR-STRICKEN at the thought of where the mayor's office (in all likelihood) will be. It has been proposed that the only feasible place in City Hall is a small, rear room that is presently a copy machine room.

By Gad, think of the consequences: The mayor takes residence in the copy room. The desk, chairs, lamps, files, (wouldn't you like to see those?), and all accoutrements are in place, but the ghost of the copy machine lingers.

Late one night, after one of the midnight council meetings, the mayor is sitting at his desk, drafting new controls, when a humming is heard. It is low at first, but rises in intensity. An eerie light glows 'round the desk and everything in the room starts to vibrate. A rubber sheet appears from nowhere and envelops the mayor, pressing him to the desk, holding him immobile.

A sharp click, whir, click, is heard above the hum, and again; click, whir, click. Again and again the light glows, the click clicks and from the opposite side of the desk slide, one by one, exact duplicates of Mayor Norberg, stacked neatly, complete with Staff of Office.

One by one, the duplicates rise, and march about the room to dry, waving their staffs, droning in their identical deep voices, "Primarily residential."

The door opens and the clones march out, past the council, who bow, and bow, and bow, and bow as each one passes.

Back in the office, the clock strikes one, and the clicking and humming cease. The light fades and the rubber sheet disappears as quickly as it came, leaving the faint smell of duplicating chemicals and the original mayor, slightly thinner, but still fast-thinking.

He shouts out the door to Councilman Brown: "Make sure they all register to vote!"

IF THE ABOVE comes true, then, when frustrated by any thwarting of his whims, our Mayor could really be beside himself.

If the City of Carmel does succeed in buying Piccadilly Nursery, just what would its intended use be?

Granted, it's one of the few remaining "open space" areas in downtown Carmel. Does that mean that we will have a "Heritage Park" there? And if so, just exactly what benefit can really be derived from same? I like our "mini-parks" that the Forestry Department has squeezed in here and there. They are attractive and pleasant.

But, if purchased, it will mean that Carmel has spent close to $600,000. (Flanders and Picadilly) in less than seven years, and we (Carmelites) do not have more protection of loss of Carmel Beach, or adequate downtown parking lots.

DON'T KNOW WHERE it came from, but my love of iris is very strong. And now that Spring is fully here, the iris are waving at me from gardens all over town.

My own are few. The potted ones come up briefly, and the great bearded iris I carefully planted served as gourmet entree to a succession of gophers. (One dug so well in our yard that I think six inches under the grass must look like the Paris Metro System.)

But the "flags" stand tall, and bow at me, sedately, like a mature queen, acknowledging the admiration of the populace, as I walk by.

Carmel has grapestakes in common. I wonder what flower would be our common bloom?

Birdwatching, picnicking for Audubon

A day of birdwatching and picnicking plus the election of officers is planned Sunday, May 13 at the annual meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society at Hastings Natural History Reservation, Carmel Valley. Everyone is welcome; there is no charge.

A leisurely hike to observe unusual birds and flora will kick off the day of events at 7 a.m. Dr. John Davis, reservation director, will lead the field trip. Davis will also lead a second hike through the reservation at 10 a.m. Birdwatchers are welcome to join one or both excursions.

Hungry birders may picnic at 12:30 p.m. at reservation headquarters. Bring lunch and libations to the gathering. The picnic will be followed by the election of officers at 1 p.m. All Audubon members may vote.

Birders will meet at the United California Bank in Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, Carmel Valley Road and Highway 1, Carmel, at 6 a.m. or 9 a.m. to form car-pools. Independent drivers may follow Carmel Valley Road past the Village for 14.5 miles from Highway 1 and turn left on a private road shortly after passing Jamesburg Road.

For additional information, phone 624-3402.

MARC CROSS of Carmel scooped up this debris from Carmel Beach last Thursday. A day earlier he blasted the Carmel Forestry Commission for what he called "negligence" of the beach. Cross, 27, surfs there daily. (David Eaton photo)

In defense of Feno

Dear Editor:

I am an employee at one of the shops in the Carmel Plaza.

I am writing in defense of "Feno," who is a wonderful mime, juggler and acrobat. He entertains shoppers at the Plaza.

"Feno" adds joy and happiness to the lives of many who shop at the Plaza. He is entertaining and very pleasant to have around.

Almost all of the merchants feel that he is a great asset to the Plaza, putting people in a festive mood which stimulates buying.

His costume is one of bloomers, vest and a strange painted face. He is often on rollerskates while he juggles, plays the flute, and entertains the children as well as the adults.

One of the businessmen in the Plaza feels that if the "bus tourists" are too busy watching Feno—they won't have enough time to spend money in his establishment.

I would disagree with that kind of thinking. I would like to believe that a mime-clown-juggler creates an "open and free" feeling that puts people in a relaxed mood—a mood that is conducive to spending time as well as money in the Plaza.

"Feno" entertains because he loves it—he does not get paid for sharing his talents at the Plaza nor does he solicit funds.

He does hire-out for parties, wedding receptions, school events, etc., etc., but he was not paid to share his talents and enthusiasm in the Plaza.

I would like to see "Feno" stay at the Plaza. He is great for our business and for our psyches.

Pt. Lobos background

Dear Editor:

In response to Mr. David Stroud's letter of April 28, 1979, I wish to provide more background for his conception of "development" of the Point Lobos State Reserve.

The State Department of Parks and Recreation recognized that the fragile resources and the quality of the visitor's experience at the reserve was not being preserved in the manner best suited to such an area, so in the past 1½ years, the Department has held three public meetings in Monterey to provide the public with input for a master plan dealing with Point Lobos State Reserve and Carmel River State Beach.

From these public meetings and with the Point Lobos Advisory Committee (composed of many learned scientists and conservationists in our area) the State Planning Team devised a General Plan.

Some of the concerns of the public and State Department were:

(1) A general agreement that the exclusion of cars and parking lots especially on the south shore would enhance the aesthetic quality of the area.

(2) Under current levels of visitation gradual and irreversible environmental damage will continue and the beauty that was Point Lobos will be lost to future generations. Impact is very high along the south shore between Sand Hill and Vierras Knoll, perhaps almost irreversible at present.

(3) The reserve concept is understood by local visitors but misunderstood by many casual visitors who spend only one to two hours in the reserve, then move on to San Simeon or Carmel.

(4) The 450 carrying capacity of the reserve is being broken by many visitors who park on Highway 1 and walk into the reserve along with other visitors who arrive by bicycle, tour bus and hitchhiking. These visitors often exceed the carrying capacity by 200.

(5) Rangers have had their hands full managing large groups of bused students (announced and unannounced) and many times have been more a law enforcing body rather than an instructive one.

These are but a few of the problems. In the master plan the state has recommended the following: A monitoring program on ongoing resource protection, restoration of the natural process, strict maintenance of a 450-person carrying capacity, development of a visitor orientation facility, reduction of automobile traffic, a shuttle bus for visitor circulation, restoration of the natural scene by eliminating certain facilities, expansion of the interpretive program, limited public access to the Gowan Cypress Area and south of San Jose Creek Beach.

Mr. Stroud mentioned in his letter that "docent programs, a library and audio-visual stations would have an inevitable impact on Point Lobos." The programs the State Department has in mind are not as extensive as he believes them to be.

The docent program could ease the burden of the rangers from trivia so they would be educational leaders for the public, the library would be a collection of books pertaining to Point Lobos used by rangers and scientists who would be doing research by special permission at the reserve and would not be open for general public use.

The "audio-visual stations" would certainly not be along trails but rather in the front portion of the present Hudson House and in the orientation facility, as an introduction to the concept of the function of the reserve. This would be an attempt to enlighten the casual visitor in an educational way.

Upon reading the master plan (available at the reserve from one of the rangers) one would have to conclude that the state is eliminating man-made structures and objects in the reserve and protecting its future. There is no "expansion" as Mr. Stroud mentioned in his letter but rather an attempt to preserve that beauty that Mr. Stroud and 300,000 visitors each year find and love.

The Point Lobos Natural History Association was begun by a request from the State Department of Parks and Recreation for volunteer help and we support the General Plan. The association is very concerned with the public's interests in Point Lobos and Mr. Stroud's letter will be given consideration by officials in the park system. The association hopes that all citizens speak out and challenge ideas of various organizations and governing bodies. In this manner an educational process begins and an exchange of ideas flow.

Thank you, Mr. Stroud, for your comments.

Pat Hughes,
Carmel Valley

Editor's note: Pat Hughes is a member of the Board of the Point Lobos Natural History Association.

Scouts say 'thanks'

Dear Editor:

On May 5, 1979, the annual Scout-O-Rama was held at the Del Monte Shopping Center in Monterey with many Boy Scout and Cub Scout units from the Peninsula participating.

On behalf of our troop, I would like to express our sincere appreciation to the many Carmel residents and businesses who helped us by purchasing the 1,126 tickets sold by the Scouts of our troop. A special thanks to our sponsor, the Carmel Kiwanis Club, for their help and interest.

The Scouts of our troop worked hard demonstrating and explaining our exhibits to the public and participating in competitive events with other troops from the district such as physical fitness, primitive fire building and first aid.

Special thanks should go to Dave Spence of Pebble Beach who was event chairman and Carol Hoffman of Monterey who headed up the ticket sales program. Last but not least, a special word of thanks to Steve Abell, district Scout executive, soon to leave Carmel for a new Scouting position in Orange County.

I wish that more Carmel residents could take time from their busy schedules to see what Scouting is all about and to see what it does for the youth able to participate in the Scouting movement.

Blasts general aviation

Dear Editor:

While 70 percent of American families are having a difficult time making ends meet (Harris poll), the well-heeled users of small planes remain completely unaffected by the inflation crisis or the energy crunch. This form of personal aviation, 150 noisy toys at the Monterey Airport alone, is enjoying its heyday of overstimulated growth at the expense of the unsuspecting public.

Yes, "welfare" aviation is what we have, and it's sucking away at the nation's life blood like a relentless leech. No wonder general aviation does not have to change its lifestyle as long as the burden for picking up the tab falls on the taxpayers.

This big ripoff is encouraged by outdated cornucopian policies through the use of a combination of tax laws and business deductions. One recent ad in the Wall Street Journal (April 13) promised that you can fly free and own your plane all for the price of the book—$15. It's legal according to the IRS. Such disgraceful squander is responsible for turning our nation's skies into one big free nuthouse for this breed of roulette players.

In order to accommodate this disastrous growth, the bloated FAA sticks its big hand into the national cash register. Not to be overlooked is the airport aid program which includes the wasteful expenditure of $1.29 million for Monterey. While a federally funded study is recommending relocation of general aviation, our airport board went ahead and approved an executive parking ramp.

No, this is not the kind of fat cat transportation the public needs for coping with crucial days ahead. Every shrinking dollar spent on general aviation is one less for the unmet needs of the public. When will cost-conscious federal and state officials pick up their emergency fat axes and cut deeply into "welfare" aviation?

Our transportation priorities must be turned around now and reordered not for a few but for all Americans who are dollar weak and energy poor.

She teaches women how to

By KEN PETERSON

YOU'RE WALKING at night on a dark street. You're alone. Behind you, you hear footsteps click on the sidewalk. A glance over the shoulder—a stranger, large and menacing. You walk faster and the steps behind you speed up, too.

It's a common scenario. Usually the only danger is from an overactive imagination. It evaporates when the stranger passes you without a glance.

But not always. Sometimes the danger is all too real. You are about to be the victim of a mugger or a rapist.

How do you stop him in his tracks? How, particularly, if you are a woman in a culture which has traditionally taught women not to resist, not to fight back against men bigger and stronger than they are?

Dawn Callan of Carmel Valley is offering women a way.

A martial arts student and instructor for the past six years, she is teaching women from Carmel, Carmel Valley and other Monterey Peninsula communities how to discourage an attacker before he strikes, or incapacitate him should he try to make them another unresisting victim.

IT'S HARDLY an academic exercise. In the past three years there have been seven rapes and rape attempts reported to police in Carmel. During the same period, the Monterey County Sheriff's office recorded two rapes in Carmel Valley. Police authorities generally concede they receive far fewer complaints than there are rapes, however.

According to Mary Niebel, coordinating director of the Rape Crisis Center in Monterey, the FBI estimates about 5 to 10 times as many rapes occur as are reported.

Even assaults in Carmel and Carmel Valley do not tell the whole story. Mrs. Niebel said the rape crisis hotline has received calls from three Carmel Valley women since the beginning of the year, all victims of rape in other Monterey Peninsula communities.

"In our experience over the past five years, by and large, the reports we get are in proportion to the population," she said.

Thus, while Carmel and Carmel Valley have fewer residents than other Peninsula communities, the rate of rape is as high here as in Seaside or Monterey, she said.

According to 1975 FBI statistics, Mrs. Niebel said, "the rate of report (of rapes) is as high here as in San Francisco." This could mean either that as many women are assaulted on the Peninsula as in San Francisco, or that more local women report rape attacks, she noted.

And lest women think rapists respect age barriers, Mrs. Niebel offers these chilling statistics: the youngest reported rape victim on the Peninsula since the center opened in 1974 was 6 years old. The oldest, age 68. Nationally, rape victims have ranged in age from 3 months to 97 years.

"It doesn't have anything to do with attractiveness," she said. "It has more to do with lifestyle."

If you are out and around more often, you increase your exposure to attack, she said. Similarly, if your home is not properly burglar-proofed, you could be a victim there when someone breaks in.

MRS. NIEBEL STRESSED taking proper precautions—not staying off the streets and huddling behind locked doors and barred windows.

"You may think you're safe if you live here," cautions Mrs. Callan, the 36-year-old mother of a teenage daughter, "but it depends what you're willing to do to protect yourself."

She believes self-defense training can give a woman the confidence to discourage an attacker and avoid an assault.

"You only fight if you've blown it on all other levels," she said. "You kick, poke and gouge as a last resort."

According to Mrs. Callan, the goal of her classes is "eliminating the consciousness of being a victim. Most women in this country feel like victims. It's not true. Everyone is responsible for their own spirits."

In the way animals can sense fear in a person, she believes a potential rapist can detect that fear in choosing a victim.

If the woman can defeat her fear, she is less

PROTECTIVE EQUIPMENT is needed during Dawn Callan's self-defense class for women to keep the "muggers" from being injured by "victims." At left, Denise La Barre and Julie

Lyon help Mary Ferguson and Sue Tilles, center, both of Carmel, put on protective gear. Also helping are, at right, Sandra Weaver and Lynne White. (David Eaton photos) vulnerable to attack, Mrs. Callan said.

Otherwise, she added, she is liable "to surrender and allow herself to be victimized."

HER SELF-DEFENSE CLASSES, based on techniques she has studied in various martial arts disciplines, are aimed at building confidence as well as the physical ability to resist attack.

Mrs. Callan concentrates on teaching ways to break out of different choke holds an attacker might use, and how to strike the rapist or mugger in vulnerable places: the eyes, throat, solar plexus, groin, knees.

Creating the right mental attitude in women to fight back is one of the hardest tasks she faces, she said. Physically, she noted, women are "more supple, flexible, faster" than men.

"Part of the process is stripping away conditioned responses," Mrs. Callan said.

If you strike at a man, he reacts by blocking the blow. A woman is more likely to stand unmoving, amazed that she is being attacked, she said.

In her classes, she talks about the power of the mind as much as the specific physical techniques of self-defense. Sessions of the class include actual fighting, in which one woman (heavily padded for protection) takes the role of attacker and another in the class must put her lessons into practice to free herself.

THE CURRENT GROUP of nine students, including several from Carmel, is the first class she has offered through the Rape Crisis Center. She also teaches martial arts at the Yen Ching Chuan (Ever Changing Fist) center in Santa Cruz, and hopes to begin instruction on a regular basis on the Peninsula.

Mrs. Callan has taught basic self-defense techniques to social workers and other employees with the Monterey County Social and Community Services departments.

These women, she said, often find themselves in dangerous situations, as they deal with family disputes, battered wives and other volatile family situations.

"The feedback has been incredibly wonderful," Mrs. Callan said, with the workers relating to her how they have defused a threatening situation simply because of the new confidence they have in their physical ability to cope with it.

She began martial arts training herself as both a physical and spiritual exercise six years ago in Los Angeles. Before that, she had been active in dance.

"Everyone has their own art form," she said. "Every being finds a different medium."

For her, dance did not offer enough "internal work" along with the "physical work" of dancing.

"I found the balance in martial arts," Mrs. Callan said.

SHE HAS STUDIED Tai Chi, an almost-dancelike exercise, Kung Fu, Karate, Kenpo, and other martial arts systems in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Santa Cruz.

In addition to her classes on the Peninsula and in Santa Cruz, she and her husband, David Conway, raise Arabian horses on a small ranch near Carmel Valley Village.

She will offer another self-defense class beginning this month in Salinas and has been contacted by Maggie Hays of Carmel Plaza about conducting a class for the women employees there.

Mrs. Callan says at some point she may offer a class just for women 40 years and older to encourage them in learning to protect themselves. About 10 percent of her students are women over 40.

Age is no barrier to mastering confidence and self-defense techniques, she said.

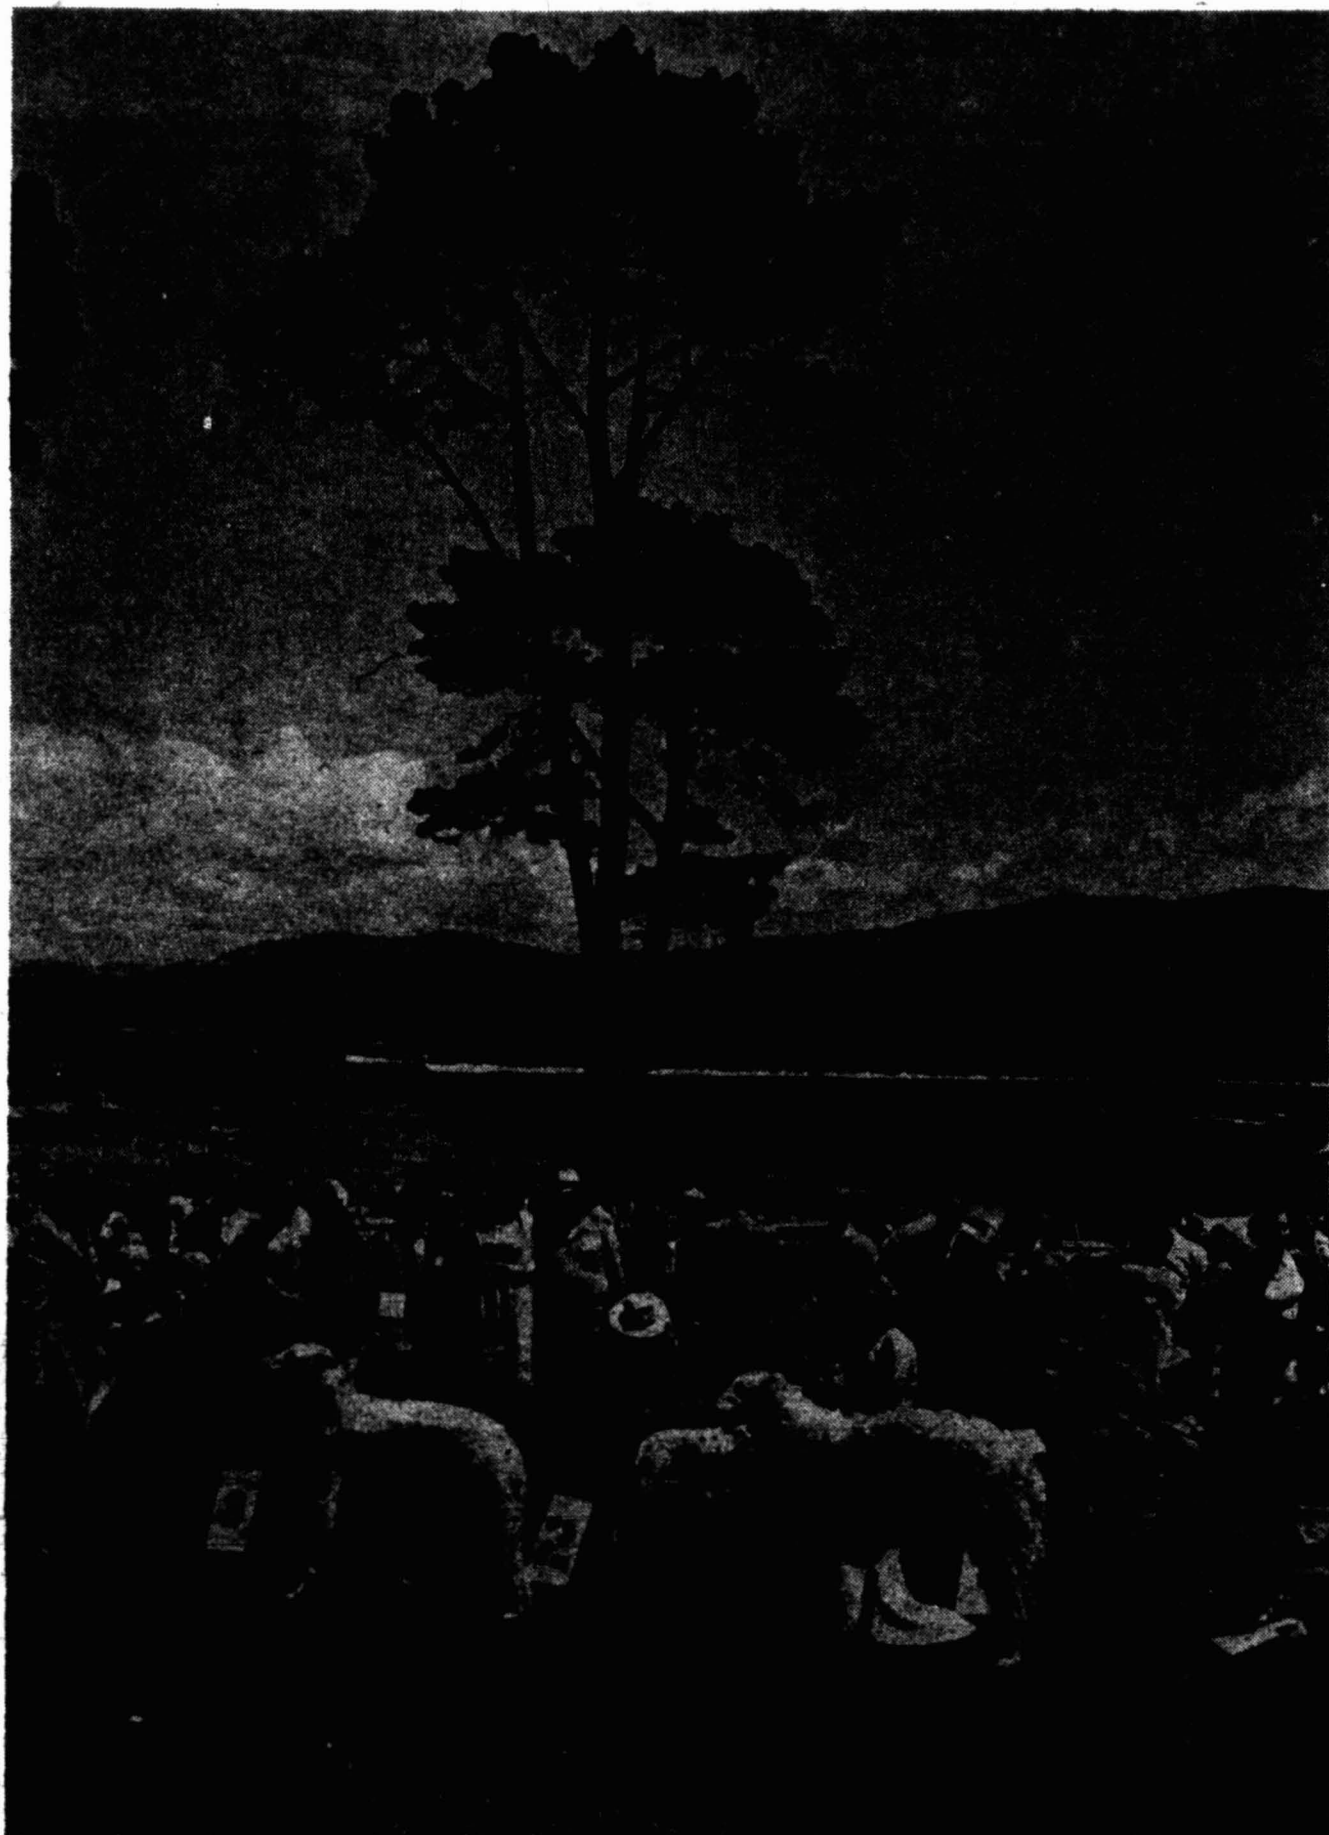

"The most flexible person I ever met was 80 years old," she said. "He was a yogi who never bought the belief that as you grow old you get stiff and weak."

A SETTING OF INCOMPARABLE beauty earned the Del Monte Kennel Club the title of "the most beautiful dog show in the world" when it was staged on the lawn overlooking Carmel Bay at The Lodge, Pebble Beach.

The show will return to its blue ribbon format and magnificent location Sunday, May 13 when the 54th annual event is dedicated to the memory of its founder, Samuel F.B. Morse.

"LUGO" soars over a hurdle with the style that earned him the highest obedience title awarded by the American Kennel Club. The Doberman Pinscher's real name is Ch. Teraden's Caballero de Lugo, UDT. Owned by Judith and Gary Howard of Moraga, Lugo is entered in obedience and Best of Breed competition Sunday at the Del Monte Kennel Club's 54th annual dog show at The Lodge, Pebble Beach.

Del Monte Kennel Club presents annual show Sun.

A return to the elegance of yesteryear is promised when the Del Monte Kennel Club presents its 54th annual dog show on the lawn at The Lodge, Pebble Beach on Sunday, May 13. The event is dedicated to the memory of Samuel F.B. Morse, who founded the Del Monte Kennel Club and was instrumental in organizing its first dog show.

From its inception until 11 years ago, the show had a limited entry of 500 dogs, restricted to those who had won a blue ribbon at an American Kennel Club-recognized dog show. Staged on the lush green lawn between the lodge and the blue waters of Carmel Bay, the show earned the title "the most beautiful dog show in the world."

But as entries continued to grow it became necessary to relocate the event to Collins Polo Field where, in recent years, more than 2,000 purebreds have represented nearly every recognized breed. This year, show chairman and all-breed judge Derek Rayne of Carmel led a move to return the show to its smaller size and former location.

An additional prerequisite has been added this year: dogs must have won at least one major—an award of three or more championship points—to be eligible. Thus, classes will be limited to Open and Best of Breed competition; there will be no puppy, novice or other classes.

There will be obedience competition, however, with a special exhibit by Ch. OTCh. Sunstreak of Culywood, a golden retriever who is No. 1 in the country in all-breed obedience competition. The dog will be put through his paces by his owner/handler, Suzi Bluford of Carmel Valley.

Best-in-Show honors will be awarded by Mrs. Augustus Riggs IV of Woodbine, Maryland.

Admission is $4. A portion of the proceeds will be donated to the Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Show hours are 10 a.m.-6:30 p.m. Tickets will be sold at all gates to Del Monte Forest and at the dog show itself.

'Kitchen Sink' rummage sale scheduled Saturday at All Saints'

"Even the Kitchen Sink: A Rummage Sale of Distinction" is scheduled Saturday, May 12, 9 a.m.-3 p.m., at All Saints' Church Parish Hall, Lincoln and Ninth, Carmel. The best items will be sold in a silent auction open to bidders from 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

The annual event is sponsored by the All Saints' Episcopal Churchwomen.

In the treasures and collectibles departments will be "finds" including Heisey glassware, Bavarian and Czechoslovakian porcelain, antique waffle irons and Oriental silk embroideries.

A Danny Garcia picture has been donated, in addition to two 19th century oils and an old French etching. A set of bamboo furniture and china which bears the marks of Haviland, Limoges, Wedgwood and Staffordshire will be offered for sale.

Luncheon will be served by the All Saints' Day School Organization under the direction of Mrs. Steven Henderson of Carmel. A snack bar, manned by the Youth Group, will be open throughout the day and free babysitting will be provided for shoppers in the church nursery.

Co-chairmen of the sale are Mrs. Robert Priestley and Mrs. Sam Marinkovich of Carmel.

Proceeds will benefit the parish and community activities of All Saints' Church and All Saints' Day School in Carmel Valley.

'A Funny Thing Happened' staged in Pebble Beach

A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum, the uproarious slapstick musical, will be staged in the Robert Louis Stevenson School auditorium, Pebble Beach, Thursday through Saturday, May 10-12 at 8:30 p.m.

Set in Roman times, the story is about a sly, eager-to-be-free slave who concocts a series of events to ensure his freedom.

Students of the RLS drama department, under the direction of Hamish Tyler, the school chorus and band conducted by Robert Klevin and dancers directed by Suzanne Scoville produced the show.

The play stars Kim Taylor, Kathy Erskine, Susie Heger, Cheryl Sailor, Michele Ramsey, Holly Hofer, Ken Moller and Celia Bernhardt.

Admission, at $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for students, will help defray production costs. For additional information, phone 624-1257.

Benefit garage and bake sale in Pacific Grove

Friends of Urban Nature will sponsor a benefit garage and bake sale, Saturday, May 12, 9 a.m.-3 p.m. in the Cop market parking lot, David and Lighthouse avenues, Pacific Grove.

Proceeds will be used to plant trees and shrubs. A greenhouse, a native plant nursery and community gardens are among the long-range plans the group hopes to create in urban settings.

BALKAN DANCERS will entertain Friday, May 11, when the Defense Language Institute will open its doors for Language Day Open House. They are one of several groups of students, faculty and members of the civilian community who will present ethnic cultural entertainment. Visitors will be welcome at no charge to the campus on the Presidio of Monterey between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. The program is planned to give the public a basic knowledge of the language training facilities and methods used at the military school, and to introduce the many cultures represented by the 500-member, foreign-body faculty. For additional information, phone 242-8454.

R.L.S. radio station broadcasts alcohol series

A series of taped programs on alcoholism, drug abuse and mental health will be aired on KSPB, 91.5 FM, the student-run radio station at Robert Louis Stevenson School.

The 15-minute programs, which may be heard at 6:30 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday through June 7, will attempt to answer such questions as: Where can an alcoholic receive help? What is the answer to drug abuse? How can children's mental health be handled?

Each of the subjects will be discussed by an authority in the field, most of whom are members of the HEW Department's Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Administration. Moderator for the series is Tom Bowers of the National Institute for Mental Health.

For more information, phone Hamish Tyler at RLS, 624-1257, or write the Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Administration, P.O. Box 1974, Rockville, Md.

AL PARKER (left), one of America's best-known illustrators, is congratulated by HARRY X. FORD, president of the California College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland after the College had conferred on Parker the honorary degree of Doctor of Fine Arts at its April 28 commencement ceremonies. The honoree sports the distinctive "Rembrandt cap" recently adopted by the college as headgear for its graduating students and its honored guests.

JAM SESSION: local musicians (from left) Ray Fabrizio, Buddy Jones and Bob Phillips will perform jazz-classical works at a benefit concert for the new Jamesburg School, Thursday, May 10 at 8 p.m. in the Hidden Valley Theatre, Carmel Valley Village.

Jazz/classics jam session benefits Jamesburg School

Jazz and classical styles will fuse in a performance of the Claude Bolling Suite and other original numbers on Thursday, May 10 at 8 p.m. at Hidden Valley Theatre, Ford and Carmel Valley roads, Carmel Valley Village. The concert by local musicians will benefit the new Jamesburg School.

The Claude Bolling Suite, written in seven movements for classical flute and jazz piano, was composed by six-time Grand Prix du Disque winner Claude Bolling. The acclaimed pianist and orchestra leader has studied the harmony and counter-point of the classics yet patterns his music after long-time friend Duke Ellington.

Additional compositions to be performed include a Bach sonata and rhythm sections, arrangements for two flutes and a jazz trio and two solos by pianist Bob Phillips.

Instrumentalists are Ray Fabrizio, principal flutist with the Monterey County Symphony since 1958; jazz drummer Mel Patterson, who has performed with band leader Harry James and was staff drummer with Walt Disney Studios for five years; Buddy Jones, bass player for Jake Stock and the Abalone Stompers and staff musician with CBS for 12 years; and pianist Bob Phillips, a student of classical music on the East Coast who now plays with Jake Stock's band and his own trio at local nightclubs.

Tickets, at $5, are available at Abinante's Music in Monterey and the Carmel Valley General Store, Carmel Valley Village or at the door the night of the performance.

For additional information, phone 373-8251.

'Philadelphia Story' opens Fri. at Studio

Opening performances of The Philadelphia Story, a romantic comedy about the escapades of a spoiled rich girl, will be staged Friday through Sunday, May 11-13, at the Studio Theatre/Restaurant, Dolores and Seventh, Carmel. Dinner is served each evening at 7 p.m. with curtains at 8:30 p.m.; both are one hour earlier on Sunday.

A Broadway hit in the 1940s that starred Katharine Hepburn, Philadelphia Story is about beautiful Tracy Lord, an inhibited romantic waiting to be awakened. Married to and divorced from C.K. Dexter, she is now engaged to a successful young snob. Her ex-husband appears with a gossip columnist and photographer in the midst of the wedding preparations and plots a series of calamitous events which lead to a conciliation with Tracy.

Directed by Diane Hall, the local production stars Dierdre Moore as Tracy Lord; C.K. Dexter is portrayed by Charles Murphy; Donna Zucatti is Liz Embrie; and Joe Patrick plays Mike Connor.

For reservations or information, phone 624-1661.

Surfing featured at Brown Bag Cinema

The Moods of Surfing, an award-winning documentary about surfing antics on the big waves, and The Photographer, a documentary about local photographer Edward Weston, will be screened Thursday, May 17 as the Brown Bag Cinema program in Leonard Carpenter Hall, Sunset Center, Carmel.

Everyone is welcome to the free program.

Brown baggers are asked to bring lunch and sip complimentary coffee at noon on the terrace or in the Chapman Room during inclement weather. The film begins at 1 p.m.

For additional information, phone 624-3996.

Holistic healing workshop planned

Holistic healing and self-development will be the subjects of a week-long series of workshops conducted by spiritual leader Emile Canning in Room 4 of Sunset Center, Carmel. A $7 fee will be charged for each session.

Canning, the director of the Foundation for a Positive Future, has taught workshops and healing and educational conferences throughout the United States. Founder of Education Unlimited and Harmony Productions in Santa Cruz, he recently organized the Community Consciousness Carnival at Cabrillo College where more than 5,000 people participated in workshops and musical events.

Holistic and Spiritual Healing is an introductory workshop which provides a dynamic means of healing both the individual and planet Earth, according to Canning. Healing methods to be demonstrated include: wheat grass, laying on of hands, visualization, clearing your aura, meditation and massage. The program is scheduled Thursday, May 10 at 7:30 p.m.

Developing Psychic and Spiritual Ability will be the workshop topic Monday, May 14 at 7:30 p.m. The session is designed to help participants explore psychic gifts and expand their abilities.

Developing Leadership for the Planet in the 1980s is the final session planned Tuesday, May 15 at 7:30 p.m. The workshop will enable persons to gain a better understanding of their planet and themselves.

For additional information or reservations, phone 649-5044 or 375-8883.

18th annual flower show this weekend in Valley

Poetry of Flowers is the theme of the Carmel Valley Garden Association 18th annual flower show scheduled Saturday and Sunday, May 12-13, at Tularcitos School, Ford Road, Carmel Valley Village. The two-day event will continue from 1-5:30 p.m., Saturday and 11 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Sunday. There is no charge for admission; everyone is welcome.

Visitors may view flower arrangements designed by club members; consult with professional gardeners about their plant woes and enjoy free refreshments. The Garden Bargain Booth will offer a variety of vegetables, flowers, herbs, unusual plants and succulents to shoppers. Door prizes will also be awarded throughout the weekend.

Ford Road is approximately 10 miles east of Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Road. Turn left at the Valley Lodge.

For further information, phone 659-4968.

Chamber Music Awards Concert Sunday at Sunset Center

Winners of the eighth annual Chamber Ensemble Competition sponsored by the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula will perform at an awards concert, Sunday, May 13 at Sunset Center, Carmel. The concert begins at 3 p.m.

Ensembles from around the state have been chosen on the basis of tape recordings submitted to a panel of judges. Final auditions for the award will be conducted Saturday, May 12 at 1 p.m. in Sunset Center.

Members of the ensembles must be under the age of 26 and trained under the direction of a coach. A prize of $1,000 will be awarded to the first prize winner and $500 will be given to the runners-up. A third prize, the Fred Schaad award of $250, may be given if an ensemble qualifies.

Coordinating judge Oleg Kovalenko is a Russian-born violinist, conductor, former concertmaster of the Berkshire Festival Orchestra and recently resident conductor of the Indianapolis Symphony.

The other judges are Charles Fulkerson, teacher of piano and conductor of the Humboldt Symphony, who recently retired after 36 years at Humboldt State University; Ronald Copes, violinist and assistant professor at UC Santa Barbara; and Russel Howland, clarinetist and first bass player with the Fresno Symphony and instructor emeritus at Fresno State University.

Everyone is welcome to the Saturday auditions at no charge.

Tickets for the awards concert, at $4.50 general admission and $2.50 for students, will be available at the door.

'Carmen' not to be missed

By SCOTT MACCLELLAND

WHAT DO CARMEN and Die Fledermaus have in common? Many music lovers here will immediately recall last weekend when Hidden Valley opened its new production of the former and the Monterey County Symphony served up the latter as its season finale. It is also true that the two were premiered within a year of each other, Fledermaus in April 1874, and Carmen in March 1875. And though the operas have two completely different stories and treatments there is a link through Henri Meilhac and Ludovic Halevy, for this team produced the libretto for Carmen and a French vaudeville called Le Reveillon on which Fledermaus is based.

At that the similarity is ended. Fledermaus is a Viennese farce of sweet and bubbly revenge and Carmen is a melodrama of passionate love, jealousy and death.

It is arguable that Carmen could as appropriately be called Don Jose for it is the hapless soldier turned renegade whose personality undergoes the most dramatic metamorphosis. And this argument was only reinforced last Saturday night at Hidden Valley when James Anderson created a Don Jose whose decline from righteous and prissy mama's boy to jealousy-crazed desperado was unflagging and terrifying. And Anderson's achievement was only one of numerous reasons why this Carmen is among the very best of Hidden Valley and a production not to be missed.

This is Anderson's first appearance at Hidden Valley and he brings a splendid tenor, powerful and confident, and a shrewd sense of dramatic development and deportment. His Flower Song was eloquent and moving; in his last two confrontations with Carmen he struck fear into gypsy and audience alike. And through it all he remained a convincing and pathetic figure never lapsing into caricature.

PATRICIA SCHUMAN was Carmen. She last appeared at Hidden Valley in The Magic Flute and she has decidedly come a long way. She is a most compelling figure on stage, beautiful and vocally gifted. Her Carmen was seductive and haughty, and yet her character underwent little development and remained vaguely aloof. The one scene in which Carmen can make that quantum leap into depth of soul, the card reading, she treated to a perfunctory review instead of a dramatic climax. This commitment to musical values over dramatic held forth and was musically satisfying, but the potential for dramatic development was left largely aside.

Peter Atherton, also a new import, was a strong and winning Escamillo. He was vocally rich though not up to the polished command of Anderson and his character was consistently generous, arrogant and confident. He matched the role with skill and imagination. Jane Olian was a lovely and convincing Micaela though she seemed a little uncomfortable with the role. She stretched into an almost too demure Micaela and then, at turns, expanded vocally into a full big sound that did not quite match either.

Lawrence Venza was Dancairo and Gregory Mercer was Remandado. Both were excellent. Frasquita and Mercedes were sung respectively by Velvali de Ayxa and Suzanne Dobkin and they too were first rate. The relationships between these four were kept clear. The acting and the singing were most complementary.

Reg Huston was Zuniga, Don Jose's boss, and he was outstanding. What he could teach most of his colleagues about acting deserves more notice at Hidden Valley than it gets. But how does one teach talent?

Another strong feature was the stage direction of James Lucas. He had well-made but simple design by Larry French to deal with and he took excellent advantage. Through blocking and obvious wisdom as to Carmen's dramatics he skillfully manipulated the characters and the chorus to create different vistas, different spaces and, as one consequence, most effective cameos. His vast experience showed.

David Effron's imposing musical direction also showed. He kept the familiar tunes and clichés fresh and surprising though the outstanding orchestra seemed a little off best form. For this production the orchestra remained behind the backdrop, and the sound, for the first time in memory, was contained and not given to overwhelming the singers. It was no less clear, however. The entr'actes, particularly the flute and harp preceding Act III, were sparkling and immediate.

THE PRODUCTION OVERALL was a great success. The three dancers were adolescent and a little clumsy. The children's chorus easily ran away with the beat at first but there was so much serious dedication and single-mindedness that it was hard not to laugh with delight.

The chorus was very fine though there were times when its 40 members were suddenly all on stage and then suddenly gone. There was something unsettling about its feast or famine presence. The parade scene in the last act was colorful and dynamic. And in Act I, when the bell rang, the cigarette girls all came out with, you guessed it, cigarettes, filling the theater with smoke (but only for a moment).

A puzzling piece of staging was Carmen's attempt to stab Jose at the end of Act III. It does not seem in the gypsy's character to tamper with fate.

There are 11 performances remaining including several matinees; the final performance is June 3.

IF THERE WERE ANY doubts about the wisdom of producing a concert version of Die Fledermaus for the Monterey County Symphony's final subscription concert, Maestro Haymo Taeuber quickly put them to rest. The bonbons and champagne were delicious Sunday night at King Hall.

Richard Tyler, director of Sunset Center, offered his own witty narration to set scenes and bridge gaps in a performance that was stripped of fat, leaving only musical delights: arias, ensembles and choruses. The orchestra tended to cover the soloists but that was the fault of the hall and Taeuber did an admirable job at keeping things in balance.

In fact, the event was delightfully successful. Taeuber applied echt Wien style and motion and the result was sparkle and lively animation. The solo singers were all good, though there remained some unevenness. Gaelyne Gabora brought a big, strong-though-dynamic manner to Rosalinda and infused the part with graciousness and subtlety. Stephen Janzan was Eisenstein. He was strong, clear and stylishly comedic, though the higher tessitura sounded a little forced. Daniel Parkerson was also a bit forced in that high tenor danger zone, but spun a convincing Alfred.

Marian Maarsh was the maid Adele. She was strident and wobbly early on but her plea to be allowed to become an actress, in Act III, was well sung and winningly portrayed. William Ramsey was vocally strong and dramatically clever as the humorous but vengeful Dr. Falke. Mitchell Neufeld is making his career as a tenor but did not have to be one for Frank, the prison warden. He was successful in both that baritone role and in the tenor role of Dr. Blind. His is a fine voice and he enjoys a reserve of acting ability.

Linda Purdy sang the mezzo role of Prince Orlovsky. She pulled it off in fine style and demonstrated a solidly dependable and lovely voice.

THE MONTEREY PENINSULA Choral Society was in fine shape and included numerous younger singers. In fact, it was the Act II scene of King Champagne, with everyone participating, that the highest moment of the concert occurred, and the chorus sounded snappy and solid.

Because of the location of the singers, Taeuber himself carried the bouquets to the ladies from the foot of the stage. And on a final bow he was suddenly handed a bottle of champagne by an appreciative audience member. It was the perfect touch.

THE GYPSY, Carmen, toys with Don Jose in a scene from the Hidden Valley Opera Ensemble production of Bizet's Carmen. Rebecca Mercer-White plays Carmen; Neil Breen is the corporal. Performances are scheduled Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Hidden Valley Theatre in Carmel Valley.

'Same Time, Next Year' is tender love story

By BARBARA J. MOUNTREY

Same Time Next Year, now playing at the Wharf Theatre in Monterey, is Bernard Slade's tender story of enduring love between a man and woman who meet once each year in the California hotel where they first had an affair in 1951.

Their relationship survives the birth and death of their children, their individual strivings for self-realization and the social forces of a quarter of a century. The characters are real and sympathetic, not always admirable but always understandable.

Jan Du Plain and Leonard O'Neill do an excellent job as Doris and George, moving from awkward youthfulness to rich maturity without losing their essential identities. He seems to age less than she, perhaps because he is discovering his ability to be creative and playful while she is becoming strong and competent.

The direction by Nick Hovick, in his own well-designed set, is natural and intimate, as if we are really glimpsing two people alone together in an enclosed space. The set is handsome, with vaguely mission-style architecture and decor, and the lighting design by Anthony Mariano works very well. Bill Boomer, as stage manager, makes even the set changes amusing.

Same Time Next Year plays Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings through June 22.

42nd annual Carmel Bach Festival program announced

The program and schedule for the 42nd Carmel Bach Festival has been announced for the two-week event, scheduled July 13-29 in Carmel. Maestro Sandor Salgo will return as Music Director and Conductor for his 23rd season; he assumed the position in 1956. The Hungarian-born Salgo is also music director and conductor of the Marin Symphony and the Music at the Vineyards series in Saratoga. He was recently invited to conduct at the International Handel Festival in Halle, Germany next year.

Also returning for the 1979 festival will be Priscilla Salgo, director of the Carmel Choral and Music Assistant and Kenneth Ahrens, director of the Festival Chorus and Festival Coordinator.

Festival highlights are The Passion According to St. John by J. S. Bach and The Magic Flute by Mozart. Other major works to be performed include the Bach Cantatas Nos. 8 and 21 and the six Brandenburg Concertos and six Sonatas for Harpsichord and Violin; the Concerto for Harpsichord and Violin by Haydn; Lucrezia by Handel; and Credo by Vivaldi.

The Festival opens Friday evening, July 13 with the performance of the six Brandenburg Concertos by J. S. Bach. (The concert repeats Tuesday, July 17.)

Other concert highlights include:

- Piano Concerto in C, K. 467 and the Symphony no. 41 ("Jupiter"), K. 551 by Mozart, Saturday, July 14 (repeats Friday, July 20);

- The Magic Flute opera by Mozart, sung in English, Sunday, July 15;

- Concerto for Harpsichord and Violin by Haydn plus a J. S. Bach cantata and works by Mozart, Monday, July 16;

On Wednesday, July 18, the Founders' Memorial Concert at Carmel Mission Basilica will present the Credo, Concerto for two violins and Nisi Domine by Vivaldi and works by Schutz and Gabrieli. (The concert will be repeated July 25.)

- Bach cantatas and partitas and the Sonata for two violins by J. M. Leclair are on the program Thursday, July 19;

- The Passion According to St. John will be performed Sunday, July 22 and 29.

The second week's programs repeat the concert offerings of the first week.

The Festival traditionally includes a number of free lectures and symposia as well as morning recitals given by soloists in various locations.

Dr. Raymond Kendall will discuss Mozart's The Magic Flute Saturday afternoon, July 14. He will speak on Bach: The Passion According to St. John Saturday, July 21 and 28. Dr. William Mahrt will examine Music of the San Marco Cathedral Wednesday, July 18 and 25.

Morning recitals (often preferred by Bach Festival cognoscenti who appreciate the intimate quality of the surroundings) will offer Chamber Music for French Horn and Strings Tuesday, July 17; French music for the harpsichord Thursday, July 19; Instrumental and Vocal Chamber Music, Friday, July 20; Sonatas for Harpsichord and Violin by J. S. Bach, Saturday, July 21 and Wednesday, July 25, plus other programs. Two organ recitals are also scheduled Thursday, July 19 and 26.

An impressive list of guest soloists includes:

Kaaren Herr-Erickson, Ellen Kerrigan, Rebecca Taylor, Mary-Esther Nicola and Diane Thomas, sopranos; Linn Maxwell, mezzo-soprano; Barry McCauley, James Sterrett-Bryant, Michael Sells and Gregory Wait, tenors; Douglas Lawrence and William Ramsey, baritones; Philip Booth and Robert Lopez, bass.

Instrumental soloists are: Gustav Schmah, Rosemary Waller and Mark Volkert; violin; Alan de Veritch and Thomas Hall, viola; Douglas Ischar, cello; William Doppmann, piano; Hans Pischner, Bruce Lamott, Madeline Ingram, harpsichord; Kenneth Ahrens and Thomas Harmon, organ; Donald Peck and Janet Ferguson, flute; Raymond Duste, oboe; Susan Willoughby, bassoon; Arthur Krehbiel, French horn; Edward Haug and Charles Duval, trumpet; Wilbur Sudmeier, trombone.

For ticket order forms or additional information, write the Carmel Bach Festival, P.O. Box 575, Carmel, Calif. 93921 or phone 408-624-1521.

Roaring lions, daredevils, clowns featured at Circus Vargas shows

Circus Vargas, the largest big top traveling circus in the world, will bring the excitement of daredevil aerial feats, roaring lions and the antics of clowns to the Monterey Peninsula Friday through Monday, May 11-14 at the Del Monte Shopping Center, Monterey.

The three-ring showcase will present 150 performers and 100 animals in more than 20 acts under a big top that spans three acres and peaks at a height of 48 feet.

Headlining the production will be lion tamer Harry Thomas who thrills audiences with his 15 unpredictable Royal Bengal tigers and the grace and elegance of liberty and dressage horses under the rein of the Herriott Family, who fill three rings with their Andalusians, Arabians and Appaloosas.

Additional acts will include the daring trapeze stunts of the Flying Padillas; two high wire acts, the Abulet Brothers and the Vasheck Duo, who will take a high wire motorcycle ride; the Arabian tumbling of the Tangeir Troupe; and Alfonso and Lydia Burkett, who perform suspended from a mirrored ball from the peak of the circus tent.

Crowd-pleasing pranks of the Circus Vargas clowns will also entertain audiences throughout the show.

Ticket prices for children 11 and under are $3 and $5.75 for adults. For preferred section seating add $1.25 for each ticket and $2.50 per ticket for box seats.

Show times are Friday, May 11 at 8 p.m.; Saturday at 12:30, 4 and 8 p.m.; Sunday at 12:30, 4 and 7 p.m.; and at 4:30 and 8 p.m. Monday.

Tickets may be purchased at Ticketron in Roos Atkins, Del Monte Shopping Center, or at the gate at show time.

For additional information, phone 372-3202.

High school auditions planned for Hidden Valley training

Hidden Valley Music Seminars will hold auditions for high-school age vocalists and instrumentalists who are interested in participating in an intensive five-week music program this summer. The auditions for local area musicians are scheduled at the Hidden Valley Theater in Carmel Valley on Saturday May 19, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. There is no charge to audition, but interested persons are asked to phone to reserve a time.

For almost 20 years, Hidden Valley Music Seminars has offered training and performing opportunities for singers and instrumentalists. Each summer, Hidden Valley selects 50-60 young performers to participate in five-week intensive programs of study and performance under some of the country's finest music educators. Separate programs are held for vocalists and instrumentalists.

The choral program, June 19-July 20, is designed to provide talented young vocalists the opportunity to study choral literature, music theory and musicianship, with special emphasis on sight reading and vocal development. Approximately 40 high school age vocalists will be accepted for this summer's seminar. The program includes 8-10 hours study and rehearsal daily, six days a week. Several major concerts are scheduled, and the 1979 group has already been invited to perform at the Bear Valley Music Festival in July.

The Orchestra Seminar, July 31-Sept. 1, will accept approximately 55 instrumentalists. Instrumental students also study and rehearse 8-10 hours daily, six days a week. The summer concert series, which has become a major musical event on the Monterey Peninsula, traditionally consists of weekly Sunday evening concerts at Sunset Theater, Carmel.

Hidden Valley alumni have continued their musical education at virtually all major musical institutions including Juilliard, Eastman, Curtis, UCLA, USC and the San Francisco Conservatory.

Auditions are required for all interested students and each must be nominated by his or her music instructor. Applicants should be prepared to perform two selections from the standard repertoire for their voice part or instrument. Vocalists should bring their own accompanist; a piano will be available. Students will be asked to demonstrate their sightreading ability, and to participate in a short interview. Applicants' parents are welcome to attend.

For further information, phone 659-3115.

Monterey Museum of Art features surreal paintings

A group show of surreal paintings and drawings by artists from three points on the globe will be on view through May 27 at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, 559 Pacific St., Monterey.

Born in Czechoslovakia in 1931, Mirek now lives in Italy where he paints, writes children's books and is a television programmer for Italian television. His paintings are in public and private collections throughout the United States and Europe.

Fulvio Testa was born in Verona, Italy in 1947 where he studied architecture and the figurative arts. Since 1971, Testa's illustrated children's books have been published in Switzerland, France, England, Germany and Austria. His drawings have been on exhibition in one-man and group shows.

A member of the art commission in Huntington Beach, Mitzi Trachtenberg has developed her talents in many art media. Her exhibit will include murals, large weavings, sculpture, enclosed environments and conceptual art. Her work has appeared in several juried and solo exhibitions.

Hours at the museum are Tuesday through Friday, 10 a.m.-4 p.m.; and Saturday and Sunday from 1-4 p.m. There is no charge to view the exhibit.

For additional information, phone 372-5477.

Eskimo art is displayed at Seals and Owls Gallery

Pamiortuk and Other Splendid Things, an exhibit of 28 carved soapstone otters by Canadian Eskimo artists, is currently on view at the new Seals and Owls Gallery in the Mission Patio, Mission between Fifth and Sixth,

Israeli, Italian jewelry displayed

Israeli and Italian fine gold jewelry will be displayed and offered for sale at discount prices by the Sisterhood of Congregation Beth Israel Saturday, May 12, 8 p.m.

Wine and hors d'oeuvres will be served during the benefit at the Congregation, First and Park, Monterey. Proceeds will be donated to the building fund.

There is no charge, but reservations are required. Telephone 375-6904.

Carmel. Pamiortuk is the Eskimo word for otter.

Gallery owner Martin Dain selected the pieces on his recent trip to the Northwest Territory.

Eskimo carvings have become sought after by knowledgeable collectors and are recognized as a serious art form. The Seals and Owls exhibit presents some of the finest pieces from these hunters-turned-artists.

Backgammon

By OMAR SHARIF

It is White's turn, and he doubles. Should Red accept?

ANSWER TO BACKGAMMON PROBLEM

We continue with problems based on the doubling cube. Here, there is no contact between the opposing forces—it is a straight race. A pip count shows that White is ahead 65 to 73, and in addition he has the advantage of the roll. But that is not all. Red still has three men to bring home, while White has only one.

The break-even point for accepting a double is when your opponent is a 3-to-1 favorite. If his chances are less than that, you should always accept; if they are greater, to accept is sheer folly. In this situation, Red is just about a 3-to-1 underdog, so it is a toss-up as to whether he should accept.

When you are on the borderline of accepting a double, take outside factors into consideration. Perhaps the most important is diversification—i.e., the smoothness with which the opposing forces are deployed.

In this position, Red's forces are ideally positioned. All his points are occupied by two men. Once he brings home his three men from his outer board, he should be able to bear off two men with virtually every roll of the dice.

By contract, White is going to run into problems. His 6- and 5-points are overloaded, and he has no men on two of the points in his home board. Every time he rolls a 3 or a 4, he will have to move a man from his back points instead of bearing one off. (A 4 is especially harmful, since it doesn't even permit White to fill in one of the holes in his home board.) White is going to waste a lot of time in bearing off, and Red is far from out of the game.

Since there is no possibility of a backgammon, Red should accept the double. While White has an 8-pip lead, it is a "bad" 8 pips.

ALL SAINTS'
Even the Kitchen Sink: A Rummage Sale of Distinction will be presented Saturday, May 12, in the Parish Hall from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. by the All Saints' Episcopal Churchwomen.

Featuring better-than-average fare in addition to the normal rummage sale items, this sale includes such items as Heisey glassware, Bavarian and Czechoslovakian porcelain, Oriental silks and tapestries, Lusterware, Wedgwood and Staffordshire china, bamboo furniture and Rosenthal vases. The best items at the sale will be sold in a silent auction from 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

The Day School Parent's Organization mothers will be serving lunch. A snack bar staffed by the Youth Group will be available and free child care provided. All proceeds from the sale will benefit the Church, its parish and community activities, and the All Saints' Day School. For more information, phone 624-2536, 624-6225 or 373-2225.

COMMUNITY
Religion: A Pain in the Neck is the topic of the message to be given by the Rev. James F. Bracher at the 10:30 a.m. service Sunday at the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula. His text is taken from John 14:1.

The first annual Mineo Katagiri Golf Tournament will be on Thursday, May 17 with tee-off times from 10-11 a.m. The fee is $17 per golfer, with tournament awards and prizes being given at an open house at 3 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall at the church. This tournament offers an excellent opportunity to meet the Rev. Bracher and his family. Phone the church at 624-0979 for information.

WAYFARER
The Rev. Dr. Paul Woudenberg will deliver the sermon this Sunday at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services. His topic will be a few good words for marriage, and is titled Five Reasons Why People Stay Together. As part of the Mother's Day program on Sunday at the Church of the Wayfarer, the following mothers will be honored and receive corsages at both the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services: Mrs. Frances Macray, the church's oldest mother; Mrs. Lettie Ford, the youngest mother; Mrs. Kristin Searle, the newest mother, and Mrs. Gail Still, selected as the Church School Mother.

PRESBYTERIAN
Gifts for the oldest, youngest and farthest-traveling visiting mothers will be given at each of the three services on Sunday. The Rev. Deane Hendricks will deliver the sermon.

An old-fashioned Box Social will begin at 7 p.m. on Friday, May 11. The evening will feature homemade ice cream, a barber shop quartet and box dinners made by the men and auctioned off, along with the cook to the highest bidder.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
Adam and the Fallen Man is the topic of the lesson-sermon for Sunday. Services are at 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. The Golden Text is from Jeremiah, and selections from the Bible and Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures are read at both services. Sunday school, for young people up to age 20, will begin at 11 a.m.

ST. DUNSTAN'S
The Right Rev. Daniel Corrigan, a retired bishop of the Episcopal Church, will be on hand for a special confirmation service at 10 a.m. on Sunday. Eight young people and three adults will be confirmed. The holy Communion service will be at 8 a.m. on Sunday morning.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
Red and white flower tributes will be given to all the members of the congregation on Mother's Day Sunday. A reception, provided by the men of the church, will follow the service. The Rev. Roy McBeth will deliver the sermon.

Bible study and fellowship hour is on Wednesday nights at 7:30 p.m. A young women's fellowship hour begins at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday.

OBITUARIES

She had fallen ill two days before at her job in Carmel Valley.

Mrs. Lewis had resided on the Peninsula since 1954. She was a secretary at Operation Fishnet, an elderly care facility where she was stricken.

Born in Des Moines, Iowa, she is survived by two daughters, Sue Ricci of Natchez, Miss., and Gloria Cranston, Carmel Valley, and six grandchildren. She was widowed in 1949 when her husband, Edwin Lewis, died.

Services were at Des Moines Masonic Cemetery in Des Moines, following cremation by Paul Mortuary at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea.

In lieu of flowers, the family requested that memorial contributions be made to the Monterey County Cancer Society, Box 1028, Monterey.

SALLY ANNE HUBBARD

Sally Anne Hubbard, 41, died last Friday at Community Hospital, succumbing after a period of illness.

A graduate of the University of Oregon, where she majored in French and Spanish, Mrs. Hubbard came to Carmel in 1961. She was born in Berkeley.

She was active in the Peninsula area as a member of All Saints' Episcopal Church of Carmel, the Junior League of the Monterey Peninsula and the Children's Home Society.

Her husband, Donald Hubbard of Carmel, survives along with sons Alexander and Christopher, also of Carmel; a brother, John Akselsen of Redway and her mother, Mrs. Dorothy Akselsen of Walnut Creek.

The Rev. Peter Farmer officiated at services on Tuesday at All Saints' Episcopal Church, with a private burial following at Monterey City Cemetery directed by Paul Mortuary.

What do you think?
We'd like to know.

Memorial contributions may be made to the All Saints' Episcopal Day School or to the Children's Home Society.

GERTRUDE B. CARD

Carmel resident Gertrude B. Card, 84, was found dead of unknown causes at her home last Saturday. A friend and neighbor found her at 9 p.m., according to the coroner's office.

An autopsy was performed on Sunday, but the cause of death remained unknown.

A resident of Carmel since 1955, Mrs. Card worked 20 years as a saleswoman for the Cinderella Shop in Carmel before retiring several years ago. She was born in Marysville, Mont.

Her husband, Walter R. Card, died in 1949. Three nieces and two nephews survive.

Memorial services were held Wednesday at the Church of Religious Science in Monterey where Mrs. Card was a member. Bill Little conducted.

Contributions may be sent to the Central Mission Trails Heart Association, 600 South Main St., Salinas.

Red wine still claims greatest allegiance

By ROBERT LAWRENCE BALZER

DESPITE THE WHITE WINE boom which still dominates the international marketplace, there can be no doubt that the red wine from Cabernet Sauvignon grapes claims the greatest allegiance and adoration of the true wine lover.

An aura of elegance clings to the claret of Chateau Lafite-Rothschild even among the uncounted who have never tasted it.

The fame dates from the 17th century, when it was the property of the Baron de Segur, being purchased in 1858 by Baron James de Rothschild for 5 million gold francs. It remains, in the opinion of most experts, as the late Frank Schoonmaker, "the greatest red wine vineyard in the world."

It was ranked first among the 1st Growths of Bordeaux in the still heavy Classification of 1855, which listed Chateau Mouton-Rothschild, acquired by Baron Nathaniel de Rothschild in 1853, as first of the 2nd Growths.

When he was 20 years old, in 1922, Baron Philippe de Rothschild was given full administrative rights to Chateau Mouton-Rothschild. Half a century later, in 1973, after his dedicated devotion to the famous property, establishing residence there, the only Rothschild ever to live in Bordeaux, Baron Philippe obtained the only reclassification ever granted, to 1st Growth status through the unanimous consent of not only the Chamber of Commerce of Bordeaux, which had made the classification of 1855, but by various government bureaux of agriculture.

THROUGH CONSISTENT IMPROVEMENT, constant finesse of its wines, the highest possible quality standards of Cabernet Sauvignon wines, Chateau Mouton was accorded Premier Cru Classe status of the Appellation Pauillac, along with Lafite and Latour. The 1973 Chateau Mouton-Rothschild, for this signal honor, bears a label design from an original Picasso in the collection of Baron Philippe. The wine, though much less impressive than the '75 and '76 vintages, is avidly prized by collectors for its historical significance in the world of claret.

The rivalry between Lafite and Mouton and the Rothschild cousins continues to this day. Along with Latour, Margaux, Haut-Brion, these are the legendary clarets of Bordeaux of 1st Growth classification officially. Of almost equally and illustrious order are the wines of Chateaux Ausone and Cheval-Blanc of Saint-Emilion, and Chateau Petrus of Pomerol, the latter being composed of more than 95 percent Merlot grapes rather than the Cabernets which dominate the wine of the Medoc.

UNQUESTIONABLY THE FINEST red wine of California is also the product of Cabernet Sauvignon vines. Like the clarets of Bordeaux, the Cabernet Sauvignon of California, in its finest vintings, claims the most serious consideration of American enophiles. It is rivaled by the valid esteem given to superb editions of California Chardonnay, but when it comes down to cases, the quest for fine Cabernet has first ranking.

Los Angeles Times correspondent Carl Cannon asked me recently, "Which winery in California has most consistently produced the finest Cabernet?"

Free arthritis lecture Wednesday

The symptoms and treatment of arthritis will be the topic of local physicians Wednesday, May 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula, 23625 Holman Highway, Carmel. Everyone is welcome to the free program.

Dr. Marc Lieberman, chairman of the Monterey Arthritis Program (MAP) will lead the discussions on Heredity and Arthritis and Home Care.

MAP is one of the ongoing programs of care, research and public education sponsored by the Northern California Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation.

Mayfaire Ball

at Corral de Tierra

Don your best bib and tucker for the York Mayfaire Ball Saturday, May 12, at Corral de Tierra Country Club, Corral de Tierra Road, Salinas, where elegance will be the keynote of the evening.

Alternative attire to formal dress—and equally acceptable—will be period costumes of any type.

Once there (by 6 p.m.) guests will enjoy libations and participate in a silent auction for items which include a trip for two to York, England. A dinner of roasted beef will be followed by the ball itself with dance music provided by John Daly.

Tickets are $35 per person; proceeds from the event will benefit the York School scholarship program.

For reservations or information, phone 372-7338.

"Without doubt," I told him, "the Beaulieu Vineyard Private Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon, dedicated to the memory of Georges de Latour since 1940, is unparalleled for excellence."

The question continued to haunt me for days afterwards, but I always came up with the same front-running answer. However, an embroidery of associated memories broadened the scope to a fuller reply. While the Beaulieu Private Reserve has had not only the most consistent performance of great finesse since 1940, the cask bottlings from the neighboring vineyard of Inglenook compose a library of fine selections. On the same side of Highway 29, the later and current vintages of Freemark Abbey Cabernet Sauvignon from the Bosche vineyard are marked with style and deep complexity. This would indicate the raison d'être is the soil.

But the majestic Cabernets of the 1940s from Louis M. Martini came from his Monte Rosso Vineyard high atop the Mayacamas range dividing Napa and Sonoma. The celebrated "Martha's Vineyard" Cabernets of Joe Heitz focus on the Napa Valley, and the famous 1969 award-winning Robert Mondavi Cabernet Sauvignon came from Yountville vineyards of the Napa Valley.

Never underestimate the finesse of the nonvintage Cabernet Sauvignon wines of the Christian Brothers by Brother Timothy. Anyone privileged to taste a line-up of these aged bottlings knows how fine these Napa Valley wines mature to noble finish.

IN MORE RECENT CONSIDERATIONS, one must add to this list, the wines of Clos du Val and Stag's Leap Wine Cellars, giving emphasis again to the Napa Valley as the home of the finest Cabernet, also the home of Spring Mountain and Chappellet editions of excellence.

The debut of Rod Strong's 1974 Cabernet Sauvignon from Alexander's Crown, reinforced by the excellence of the 1975 edition, points to Sonoma County, as do the 1974 and 1975 editions of Souverain Cellars Cabernet Sauvignon by Bill Bonetti. The Charles Le Franc bottlings from Almaden Vineyards point toward Santa Clara County, which in the last century and early post-Repeal vintings had major significance.

But in conclusion, the palm still remains with Beaulieu Vineyard for the longest run of consistent excellence. In this place of honor must also be Andre Tchelistcheff, who began his California career at Beaulieu in 1937.

White wines are splendid when one wishes, as H. Warner Allen once said, "to be on the surface of things." But in those wine-rich dining events which bring great friends and great wines together, the central star is always Cabernet.

CARMEL $165,000

Cheap is not the word to be used in conjunction with Carmel homes. Inexpensive may sound nicer but it is rarely appropriate. Value has a nice ring to it and is often quite good when applied to Carmel homes. Comparatively inexpensive and value are even rarer when used together.

Guess what we have? If you are that smart to guess that we have a comparatively (Carmel standards) inexpensive home that has lots of value, why aren't you on the phone asking us all about it? We'd tell you that it has:

Two bedrooms, a generous living room, dining room, delightful kitchen, two baths, single garage, lovely garden, and our bonus of the week - a detached and thoroughly redone studio. You can't bathe in the studio but you can entertain like mad or even paint a picture. MAKE THAT CALL RIGHT AWAY TO

And a few blocks from town. This is an extensively remodeled, older Carmel cottage on Dolores just south of 12th. It has a real Carmel feel to it. The large dining room has an interesting stained glass window and lots of skylights. Good value at $179,500.

60'x100' LOT, SOUTH OF OCEAN

In fact, the lot is on Lincoln between 13th and Santa Lucia, a beautiful block in one of the best parts of town. The price for this oversized lot is $185,000.

SOUTH OF OCEAN,
NEAR TOWN, $125,000

This 77-year old Carmel cottage is on Lincoln St. between 7th and 8th. A fixer-upper, yes, but you can have a perfectly livable, small one-bedroom home for little more than land value. It's tenant-occupied so we need an appointment to show.

POTENTIAL PRIVATE PARK IN BIG SUR

That's about what this 120-acre parcel of land is. The property has a wide variety of trees ... oaks, pines, two lovely groves of redwoods. Dani Creek runs through it. It's in a sunny, protected area, ideal for raising horses. About 40 of the acres are readily usable and have ocean views, too. The property has deeded access; there's a spring on the land as well as water from a mutual water company. Phone service is near. This private paradise is about 3 miles from Highway 1 on a dirt road. It's priced to sell at $144,000.

CARMEL VALLEY, 2 BEDRMS. 2½ BATHS
GUEST HOUSE, HEATED POOL

High on a wooded hill, behind tall gates at the road's end lies this adobe and redwood retreat on 5½ acres overlooking the Carmel Valley. Offered at $285,000, it must be seen to be appreciated.

2 BR, 2 BATH CARMEL CONDO, $137,500

This is a 2-story unit in High Meadow Terrace. It has an attached garage with electric-eye opener. There's a dining ell and a balcony bedroom. The unit has architectural style, and the complex has a heated pool and two tennis courts. Exclusive.

1 BR, DOWN THE COAST
OUTSTANDING VIEW

This Mark Mills designed home has one of this area's outstanding panoramic views—not just ocean, but mountains, too. It has a 17'x25' living room with a dining ell, and an 18' x 20' family room. There's a huge deck. The house is on 2.5 acres of land about 20 minutes drive south of Carmel. Approved plans for another bedroom and bath go with the house. Fantastic value at $185,000.

CARMEL LOT NEAR TOWN AND BEACH

One of the few vacant lots available. It's priced at $119,500; it even has a little ocean view. What more can you say but "Where?" Call and we'll be delighted to tell you.

MARVELOUS OLDER HOME

Ideal for Lavish Entertaining in Pebble Beach

Remember rambling houses with lots of rooms and rolling green lawns, winding driveways and separate garages with apartments? Here is a great one, in the old tradition -- 'just like the one' you probably remember. Across from the 15th green of Pebble Beach and a minute from the Lodge, the house is approached through electronically controlled gates, to its large entrance terrace which is flanked by two rare and elegant Norfolk Pines.

Tremendous, mahogany paneled Living Room with french doors leading to Library and Lanai.

Banquet-size Lanai with skylights, concealed Bar, slate floor and raised hearth fireplace of baronial dimensions, overlooks outdoor Barbecue, stone patio and gardens, and lends itself beautifully to entertaining large gatherings.

Comfortable Master Suite with spacious dressing rooms and view of Carmel Bay through the trees.

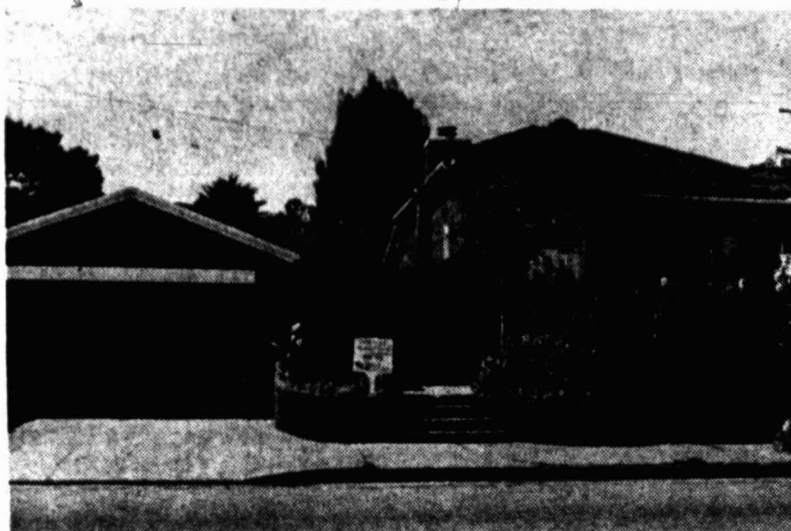

As full of goodies and surprises as an old fashioned Christmas stocking, there are big rooms and tiny rooms, sitting rooms, sewing room, reading room, maid's room, 'un petit salon,' and powder room with real Limoges basin and fixtures, AND an authentic Japanese tea-house imported from Yokohama, enhancing the beautiful garden. Brand new 'space age' Kitchen with two double stainless steel sinks beneath greenhouse windows; two self-cleaning ovens plus microwave, three-door refrigerator, fabulous Fasar Range Top. ## State Parks Commission to weigh Pt. Lobos Plan here Friday

The new general plan for Point Lobos State Reserve south of Carmel and Carmel River State Beach will be the main items on the agenda for the California Parks and Recreation Commission when it meets Friday morning at 9 a.m. at Asilomar State Conference Grounds in Pacific Grove.

Major features of the plan include replacing auto traffic in the reserve with a shuttlebus system, limiting the capacity of the reserve to 450 people at any one time, and beginning controlled burns to prevent wildfires and restore natural lifecycles to vegetation there.

The plan also provides for off-site parking adjacent to Point Lobos.

The Odello West land owned by the state but farmed by the Odellos in artichokes would remain in agricultural production for the foreseeable future under the plan.

Proposed in conjunction with the general plan—but not on the agenda Friday—is a resource protection zone (RPZ) for Point Lobos which extends to the south ridgeline of Carmel Valley and the coastal ridgeline behind the Hudson-Riley Ranch across Highway 1 from the reserve.

According to Charles Cline, assistant superintendent for District 4 of the state parks system, the RPZ is proposed as a vehicle so the parks commission can comment on development in the area.

The California Coastal Commission requires an RPZ around all coastal parks, he said. The commission itself would consider and adopt an RPZ for Point Lobos at a later date.

Cline said the boundaries of the RPZ are still being discussed by parks department staff, adding that the zone will not be part of the final Point Lobos plan.

At present, Cline said, the park district only receives notices of development within 100 feet of the reserve boundaries. The RPZ classification means development in that area would be brought to the attention of the park system for comment before it is approved or denied by planning authorities.

It does not mean a ban on development, he said, or "more restrictions than already exist."

The public hearing on the Point Lobos plan will begin at 10 a.m. after the commission completes other business on its agenda.

Barracudas place 9th at Hollister

Thirty-three Carmel Barracuda swimmers traveled to the AAU A-B meet at the San Benito Joint Union High School in Hollister last week to place ninth in a field of 20 clubs; the Carmel team accumulated 482 points and over 150 lifetime-best times.

It was ladies' day for the Barracudas. Fourteen-year-old Sarah Hicks captured three team records with A times in the 13-14 girls 200-yard freestyle, 100-yard breaststroke, and 100-yard freestyle, a fourth team record with AA time, and a first place finish in the A Division 50-yard freestyle.

Suzi Hermanson, also in the A Division, grabbed a new team record in the 15-18 girls 200-yard freestyle.

Swimmers who moved from B Division to A Division and set new team records in the process included Kathy Tracy, 10, in the 100-yard breaststroke; Amy Buckner, 12, in the 100-yard breaststroke; Katie Falge, 13, in the 200-yard backstroke; and Beth Allard, 17, in the 200-yard breaststroke.

repel would-be attackers

uses her elbows to break a choke hold applied by fellow student Carolyn Freitas.

MARTIAL ARTS INSTRUCTOR Dawn Callan of Carmel Valley, a former dancer, teaches women to defend themselves from attack. She has studied various martial arts disciplines for the past six years, and teaches both on the Monterey Peninsula and in Santa Cruz. (David Eaton photos)

Rapist convicted, but trauma lingers

DAWN CALLAN'S self-defense class for women may be a form of insurance for some, but for Bonnie Jones of Carmel the worst has already happened.

Last fall, while walking at Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey, she was assaulted in the women's restroom there. Only the timely arrival of another woman scared the attacker off before he raped her. He had already wrestled her to the ground and pinned her before fate intervened.

The man was captured and convicted after two jury trials this spring. But for Bonnie (not her real name), the scars and the trauma linger.

She is taking the class to make certain she is not helpless in such a situation again.

"If I had learned to fight, to defend myself, to be aggressive when I was young, I would have been able to protect myself," Bonnie said.

As it was, she said, "I had a complete loss of power. I was trying to fight and was doing nothing. I felt like I was floating in a dream. Finally, I just gave up."

THE AFTERMATH left her shattered, vulnerable on all levels. The helplessness she felt when overwhelmed by the rapist carried over to the rest of her life, she said.

"I felt vulnerable continually," Bonnie said. "I felt I could be in a car wreck, an earthquake."

Her husband was understanding, but for days and weeks afterward "I felt totally shattered," she said.

"The worst part about being attacked was not worrying about being raped but the fear of being murdered," Bonnie said. "You're so close to death, you can almost taste it. The actual physical act of rape is just frosting on the cake for the attacker. What he wants is power and he achieves it through violence."

ACCORDING TO MARY NIEBEL of the Rape Crisis Center in Monterey, this is a misunderstood aspect of rape.

It is not a sexual crime, she said, but another crime of violence.

And, she added, "Rape (on the Peninsula) is more violent than in the past. There are more beatings of women, more threats with a knife or gun."

"The crime works not because of sex," Mrs. Niebel said. "That is not the psychological factor. Violence, humiliation and degradation make it work."

Mrs. Callan said women like Bonnie are "one of the most interesting challenges" of a self-defense class because their confidence is at such a low ebb and must be raised so high for the training to help.

"You have not dealt with a situation, which puts the thought in your mind that you can't do it," she said.

The mind, with the seed of failure planted, is also the key to success, Mrs. Callan said.

"Just the courage to try is all it takes," she said.

"That's all it takes for anything, ever."

MAY FERGUSON OF CARMEL, a student at Monterey Peninsula College, signed up for the self-defense class with a friend because of assaults she has heard about among women on campus.

"I don't want it to happen to me," she said. "I don't want to take that chance."

"The class does help the whole situation," she added. "I'm glad I've taken it."

May said at first she came in for some kidding from friends of hers at MPC.

Now, she said smiling, they tell her, "That's a good idea. Why don't you show me some of your stuff?"

The Rape Crisis Center sponsored the class because, Mrs. Niebel said, "The best protection is staying out of the situation ahead of time. This is an area where self-defense is very useful. Women are safer if they carry themselves as if they know what they're doing."

Mrs. Callan said she will work with her students beyond the seven weeks of the course if they need emotional help.

"I feel a real responsibility," she said, "I can't just cut them loose thinking they know what to do when they can't."

More information about the classes or the Rape Crisis Center itself is available by telephoning the center office, 373-3955.

The center's 24-hour hotline number is 375-HELP (375-4357).

Father Farrell's wisdom

Let us be crisp and ready to serve

By the REV. LARRY FARRELL
The April 30 invocation delivered to the Carmel Valley Rotary Club

When we travel we find many people claim to speak our language and do not. For example, in Manila you order a cup of coffee and bacon and eggs—the waiter says "O.K. boss" and brings tea, liver and onions and a balut—a pregnant duck egg refuted to cure all ills. He says, "O.K. boss? I speak good English, no?"

We say we speak English and, of course, we speak another language, Americanese. So for the benefit of our English visitors I will recite in their language this more or less official British Rotary grace. It manages to rhyme good with food.

O Lord, the Giver of all good,

We thank Thee for our daily food.

May Rotary friends and Rotary ways

Help us to serve Thee all our days.

Here is another:

O Lord preserve us from being like old-fashioned porridge—stiff and hard to stir. But rather, keep us like modern corn flakes—crisp and ready to serve.

WHAT'S HAPPENING AT CARMEL HS

By JENNIFER MacLENNAN

Students with outstanding academic achievements were honored last Sunday by the Carmel Chapter of the California Scholarships Federation with the annual dessert.

The California Scholarship Federation is an academic club. To become a member, students must achieve a certain level of achievement in college preparatory courses.

The scale is based on a point system. An "A" in a college preparatory course such as biology, math, history, English, counts for three points; a "B" in such a course counts for one point and an "A" in a non-academic class, excluding P.E. counts for one point also. The student must have a total of 10 points for a semester of work to join. Each new semester, the student takes his grades from the previous semester, totals them, and if the total is above 10 he may renew his membership.

The club organizes trips of academic interest once a semester. Being a member also helps students receive scholarships and gain admission to selective colleges.

Once a year, members from both semesters gather at a dessert and are honored for their achievements. The dessert is held in the cafeteria and it is customary for each guest to bring a candle. The room is illuminated by the candles, symbolizing knowledge. There is also entertainment, a guest speaker, and the presentation of scrolls and the announcement of the CSF Sealbearers.

This year, the speaker was Sam Farr, district supervisor. An alumni from Carmel High, he spoke of the past and the future. The guests were also entertained by the Carmel High School Jazz and Girls' Ensemble.

To become a CSF Sealbearer, the student must be a member for four semesters out of six in high school (excluding the freshman year). Those honored as Sealbearers were: Pam Clemens, Chris Fromm, Eve Jacklin, Diane Long, Jennifer MacLennan, Josh Simpson and Breck Tostevin. The 100 percent members, who belonged to CSF during each of the last six semesters, were: Gail Frost, Kirk Gafill, Pam Hopkins and Jill Uyeda.

CV Road claims 2nd 1979 victim

Carmel Valley Road claimed its second victim of 1979 when a 31-year-old Valley resident died last week in a car crash in Carmel Valley Village.

Robert Ted Dorey, a male nurse at the Rippling River Center in the Village for the past six years, died at Community Hospital in the early morning hours on Wednesday, May 2.

According to the California Highway Patrol, he was driving eastbound on Carmel Valley Road at 11:50 p.m. when his car collided head-on with a tree near the Texaco Station at Chambers Lane in the Village.

Cause of the accident is still under investigation.

Dorey was transported from the scene by Carmel Valley Fire Department ambulance. He died of his injuries at 1:30 a.m. at Community Hospital.

Graveside funeral services for the native of King City were held Friday at King City Cemetery.

THREE CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL students were award winners in the 1979 farm project competition sponsored by Wells Fargo Bank. Among the 42 finalists who represented Future Farmers of America chapters in the Monterey Bay area were, (left to right) Joe Baker, winner of a gold certificate, and Pam Gayman and Tami Russell, who were awarded silver certificates. Students were judged on individual farm projects which they completed for vocational agriculture courses and membership in FFA.

800 local residents to take part in major health survey

Monterey Peninsula residents will participate in a major health survey designed to determine and alter the relationship between the way people live and the development of heart disease and stroke.

Launched last week, the federally funded project is called "the most ambitious study of its type ever to have been undertaken," according to Survey Director Dr. William Haskell, and should provide valuable information to reduce the high rate of cardiovascular disease in the United States.

The project will be conducted locally by the Stanford Heart Disease Prevention Program from a survey center located at 1010 Cass St., Suite C-3, Monterey.

Over the next eight years hundreds of randomly selected Peninsula families will be given free health examinations. The exams will include measurements of height and weight, blood pressure and cholesterol level.

The participants may request to have the medical information forwarded to their own doctors. A number of questions about diet and lifestyle will be asked.

The education element of the program, to begin in 1980, will be implemented through the media, adult education, youth education and education for health professionals.

Peninsula residents will be provided with the latest information and techniques for cutting the risk of heart attack and stroke. This campaign will be carried out in cooperation with local civic organizations, medical groups, and voluntary associations such as the American Heart Association and the American Lung Association.

The Stanford project, which will include the Monterey Peninsula plus four other California cities, is based on an earlier study called the Three Community Study. The earlier study, begun in 1972, demonstrated that a sustained public education program can stimulate change in living habits associated with increased risk of premature heart attack and stroke; in the communities in the study the overall risk of heart disease was reduced between 16 to 18 percent two years after an intensive educational campaign had urged participants to make dietary changes, give up cigarettes, return to ideal weight and exercise regularly. Meanwhile, the average risk had increased 6.5 percent in a control community which had received no education campaign.

There's gold in recycling aluminum

There's gold in aluminum. At least there will be for those who collect their used aluminum and take it for recycling to the Reynolds Service Center, 316 Commission St., Salinas.

First, the thrifty collectors may win the weekly bonus of $50 payable to the person who brings in the most aluminum that week. Secondly, they will receive 20 cents a pound for the recycled aluminum, the price Reynolds will pay for used beverage cans, food trays and other household aluminum items.

The special bonus program, which will continue through the end of May, is in effect only at the Salinas Service Center, which is open Tuesday through Saturday, 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

For further information, phone 1-758-5357.

Where, when to buy gas

A survey of 14 gasoline service stations in the Carmel area indicated there is gasoline available for local residents—but in limited supplies. To stretch allocations, all of the gas stations have severely limited their hours to the early morning and, occasionally, the late afternoon.

Most stations saw their allocations cut back 15-20 percent from 1978. However, 10 reported that they are given equal supplies of unleaded, supreme and regular octanes by distributors.

The odd-even rationing plan adopted by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors Monday may shorten the long lines at the pumps. Under the countywide plan put into effect yesterday, automobiles with license plates ending with an odd number may purchase gasoline on odd-numbered days of the month. Vehicles with plates that end with even numbers will be eligible to buy fuel on even-numbered days.

Personalized plates without numbers will be considered odd numbers and vehicles without plates will be able to buy gasoline on even-numbered days.

Gasoline will be pumped for all vehicles on the 31st day of the month.

HERE ARE SUGGESTIONS for motorists made by dealers that will save time at the stations:

- Do not top off. Many of the long lines have been caused by panicky motorists filling up when their gas tanks register three-quarters full.
- Fill up your tank in mid-week rather than Friday through Monday. Too many motorists wait until the weekends to buy gas for excursions. The lines are usually shorter Tuesdays through Thursdays.

• Motorists who pull up to the pumps earlier are more likely to obtain the gasoline they need without a long wait. However, a few stations, notably at the mouth of Carmel Valley, have reported lines that begin forming one hour before morning openings and up to two hours in the afternoon.

As for prices, most station operators report that motorists filling their tanks are just grateful to find gasoline and not very concerned with the prices. But the cost per gallon is inching up towards the $1 mark and will probably reach that point by mid-summer.

County announces May public health clinics

The public health clinic schedule for the month of May has been announced by the Monterey County Health Department.

Services conducted at the Health Department Headquarters, 1281 Broadway, Seaside, include an immunization clinic scheduled Thursdays, May 10, 17, 24, and 31 from 8:15-10:30 a.m. Immunizations are available at no charge to any child 2 months or older for protection against diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, measles, mumps, polio and rubella. Diphtheria/tetanus boosters will be given to adults who have not had one within the past 10 years. Tuberculosis skin testing is also available.

Immunizations required for international travel will be given to children and adults for a $5 inoculation fee.

Board of Realtors opposes commercial rent controls

George W. Brehmer
City Attorney
Carmel-by-the-Sea

Re: Your letter of April 30, 1979 Concerning Assistance of the Carmel Board of Realtors in Gathering Data for the Ad Hoc Rent Committee

Dear Mr. Brehmer:

Thank you very much for providing the Carmel Board of Realtors the opportunity to contribute our knowledge, background and opinions on the Commercial Rent Control Issue.

Unfortunately we do not have at our disposal all the information regarding the operating expenses, costs and capital improvements of commercial property in the City of Carmel. Neither do we have the staff capability to research all this information. Furthermore, we have serious doubts concerning the legality of providing such information without the specific consent and approval of the owners of said properties.

We oppose the interim ordinance imposing rent control for the commercial properties in the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea for the following reasons:

(1) The history of rent control has shown that properties tend to deteriorate when owners are unable to receive a fair return.

(2) The market place, when allowed to function, tends to be self-correcting; i.e. an excessive rent can lead to a greater turnover of tenants and a subsequent decline in rent.

(3) The necessary bureaucracy would more than likely be unable to deal in a fair and equitable manner with individual tenant-and-property-owner problems.

(4) The probable cost to citizens of Carmel in pursuing any court appeals that might logically develop from enactment of this ordinance.

However, the prime reason for the opposition of the Carmel Board of Realtors to this interim ordinance was unanimously expressed by our board of directors in their May 2 meeting, to wit: traditionally investments in the City of Carmel have been residential property. The ownership of commercial property has largely been in the hands of local residents. In many cases such ownership has been in families for generations. This long period of ownership with low cost basis has allowed for reasonable rents. However, upon the sale of these properties at today's inflated prices it is almost impossible for the new owners to achieve any reasonable return on their invested capital, in fact, in many cases we see a negative cash flow being generated by such properties.

Generally purchasers of commercial properties can achieve a far better return on their investment in other areas. Local commercial investments are usually made because of the pride of ownership and the delight and beauty of the community in addition to economic consideration.

It was also a unanimous conclusion of the board of directors that with few exceptions, local property owners have been extremely fair and equitable with their tenants.

We are delighted with the opportunity to address this issue and feel it very significant that we have been given this opportunity to communicate with our local leaders.

We strongly support maintaining the character and diversity of our commercial district. Our board recognizes and supports this concern of both tenants and property owners, pointing out that their goals are similar. We support the traditional and historical use of property in Carmel but feel an attempt to regulate such tradition might, in fact, ultimately destroy it.

The Carmel Board of Realtors is ready to provide any information we can and is willing to meet and serve with the ad hoc committee in any way that is beneficial to Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Donald F. Middleton,
President
Carmel Board of Realtors
Ben Heinrich,
Assistant Director

High school proficiency exam deadline May 16

Registration for the next California High School Proficiency Examination must be made not later than May 16, according to the state Department of Education. The test will be given June 9 at approximately 100 locations throughout the state.

To pass the four-hour exam, a person must have a grasp of the basic skills at least equal to that of the average high school senior. The state Board of Education awards those who pass the exam the Certificate of Proficiency, which is equivalent by law to a high school diploma. Persons who are under 18 when they pass the exam, however, must have their parent's permission in order to leave school before regular graduation.

Open to all persons 16 or older, fee for the exam is $10; the test is given only three times each year.

Information bulletins, which include sample questions, a list of test locations and an application form and mailing envelope, are available at all high schools and most public library branches or from High School Exam, Box 100, Berkeley, Calif. 94701.

FREE WANT ADS

For subscribers to the Carmel Pine Cone

A SPECIAL OFFER TO OUR VALUED SUBSCRIBERS

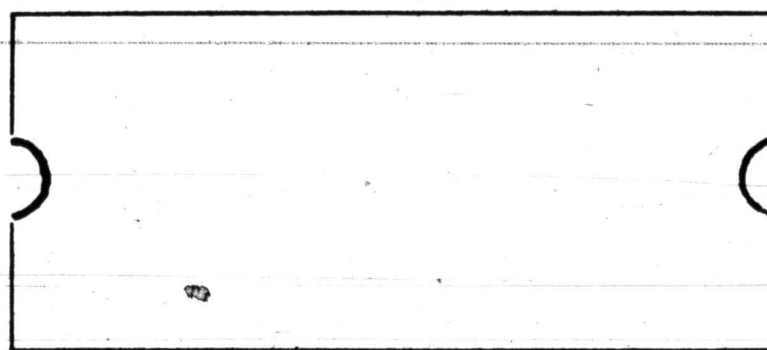

The Pine Cone is happy to be here and we always look forward to meeting our subscribers. As a gesture of our thanks for your continued support, we invite you to have a FREE WANT AD every week, in your paper.

HOW TO WRITE A WANT AD

List the classification you want your ad to appear under in the form at right. Then start your ad with the item you have for sale, etc. Be sure to include your phone number at the end. To make your ad effective, describe your item fully including such things as weight, size, color, age, condition, etc. It is best to list your asking price; this will eliminate calls from people who are not prospective buyers.

RULES:

Free want ads are for person-to-person sales only. Ads for businesses or real estate will not be accepted. Free ads must be written on this form only and delivered to our office by 3 p.m. Monday (no phone ads, please). Free ads are limited to 16 words. The Pine Cone is not responsible for errors in free ads. Limit is one ad per subscriber per week. To run the same ad the following week, a new ad on a new form must be submitted. Publisher reserves the right to accept any free ad for any reason. Free ads must be placed in the following classifications: Antiques, Autos for Sale, Boats for Sale, Lost & Found, Misc. for Sale, Pets & Livestock, Special Notices, Wanted, Yard Sales.

BEDSIDE MONITORS in the intensive care unit show blood pressure (top) and electrocardio-graph. They are part of the computerized heart monitoring system.

Watches 16 patients simultaneously:

Hospital gets

Community Hospital has installed a new computerized heart monitoring system in the intensive care unit. The system, described as the latest of its kind, provides constant electronic surveillance of 16 patients simultaneously.

The new monitoring system records and analyzes every heart beat.

At the push of a button, the system instantly calls up on a display screen—or prints out in hard copy—a summary of a patient's heart history for the last nine hours. It shows every variance from what is regarded as the patient's normal heart beat, and it plots a graphic trend of the patient's abnormal heart rhythms.

By constantly recording a patient's heart rhythm and trends, the computerized monitoring system quickly aids doctors in rhythm diagnosis and treatment.

The new system has both an audio alarm device and a three-stage priority visual alarm system. By repeated chimes, the attention of specially-trained nurses is called to the monitor of any patient experiencing rhythm disturbances. If a green light flashes on the patient's monitor, the problem is comparatively minor; if a yellow light flashes, the patient's situation may be serious, and if a red light flashes, the difficulty the patient is experiencing could be lethal.

The computer monitoring system, an adjunct to specialized coronary nursing skills, accurately records the patient's vital signs, such as heart beat, blood pressure and temperature.

In addition to providing beat-by-beat surveillance, a major advantage of the system is that it frees the nurses from "watching monitors" so they can provide more direct bedside care for the critically ill patient.

To ensure accuracy, nurses cross check interpretations the computerized system makes. They report a high degree of accuracy with the major deviation being that caused by poor signals due to a patient's normal stirring and occasional dislodgement of electronic leads connected to the patient.

The central station of the unit has four scopes, each of which is capable of monitoring four patients. In addition, there are two display status monitors each with the capability of interpreting the heart rhythm of eight patients.

The system provides a constant readout of a patient's heart rhythm and a constant up-to-the-minute analysis of that rhythm.

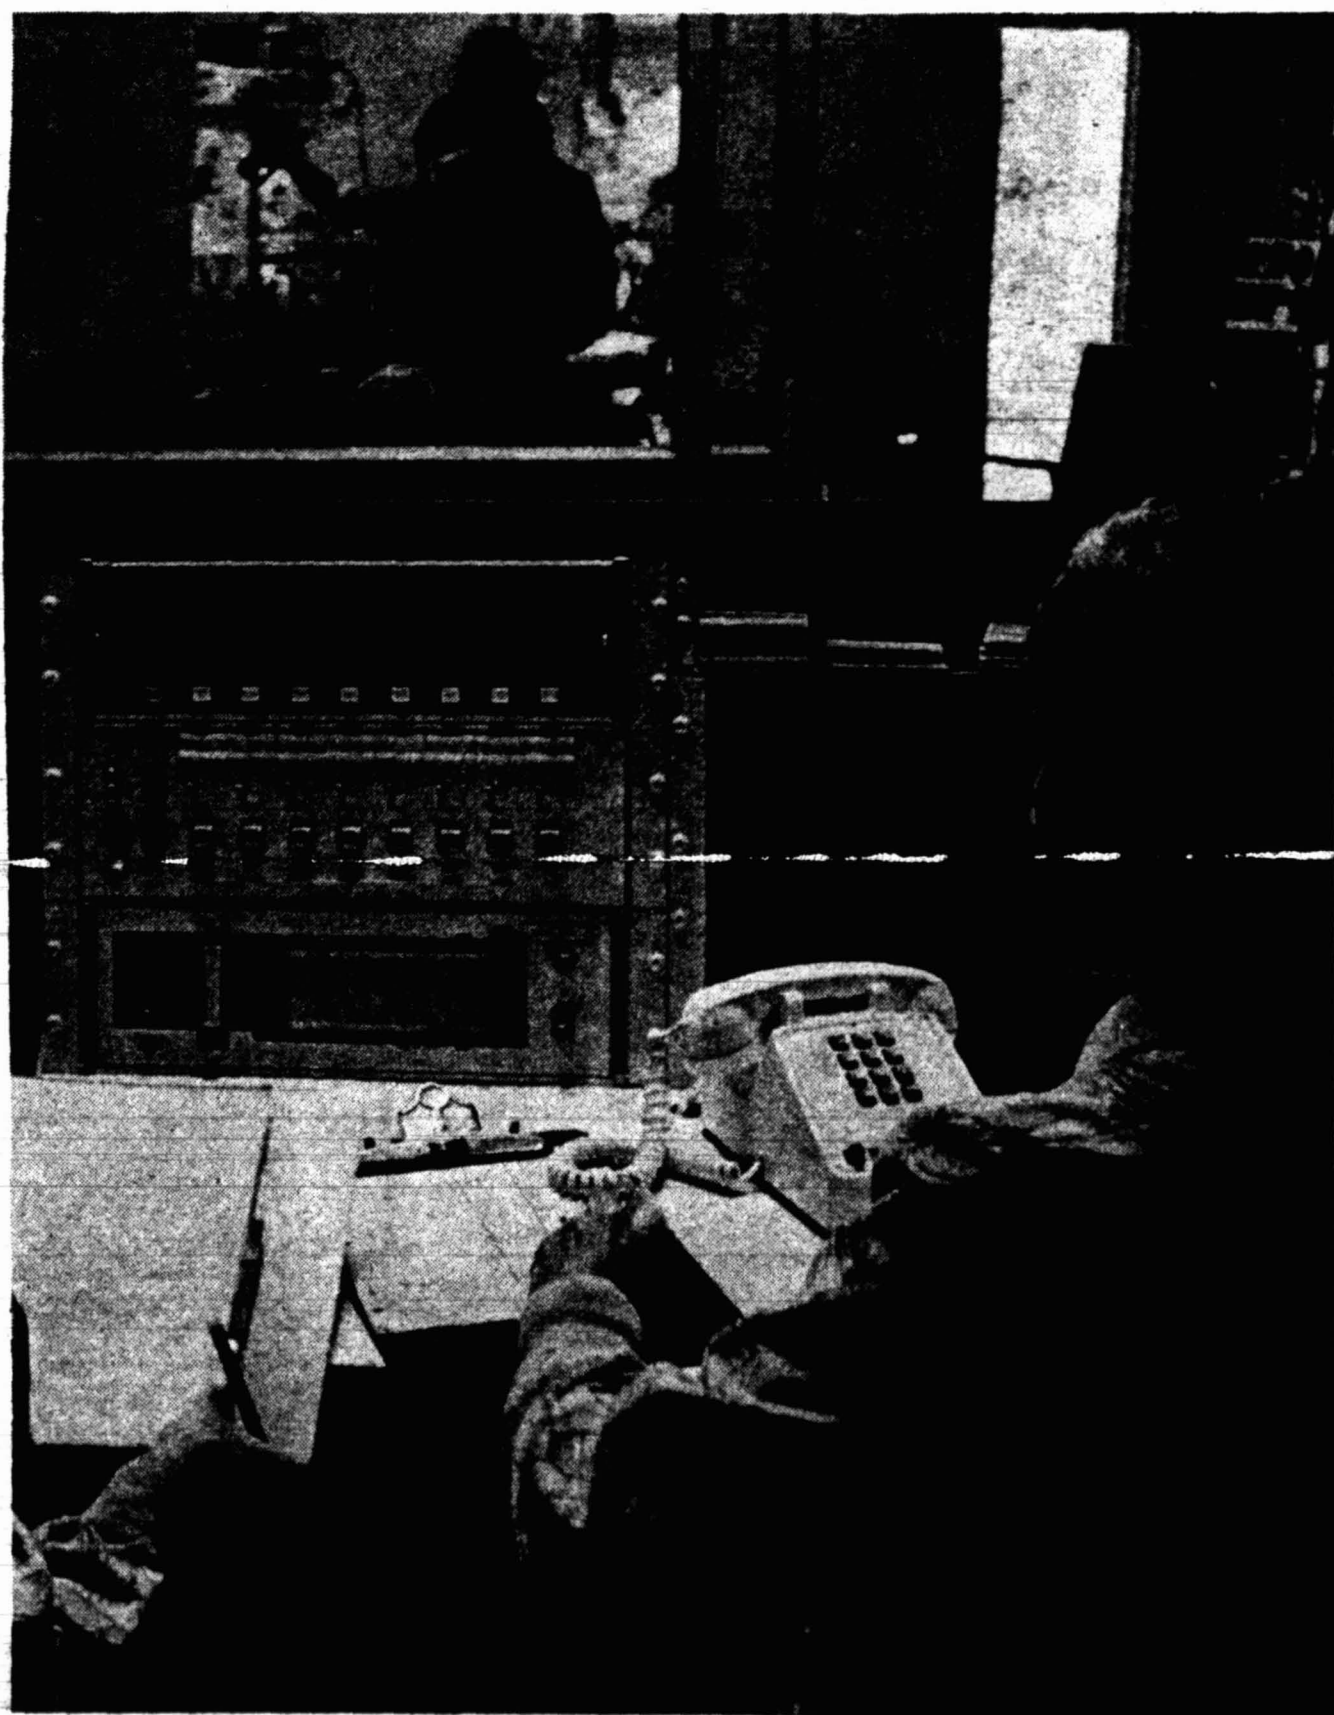

Cost of the just-installed console and equipment was $78,000. The cabling, permitting monitoring of 25 different parameters for 16 patients, was installed in 1977 and the bedside scopes and pressure-monitoring devices were installed last year at a cost of $60,000.

The system can monitor 10 patients in the intensive care unit/coronary care unit, and six patients on the adjacent intermediate coronary care nursing floor.

A "HARD COPY" printout of the patient's heart rhythms is produced by the new heart monitoring system.

Jean Decker, R.N., receives a printout.

THE NEW COMPUTERIZED heart monitoring system in the intensive care unit at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula can keep track of the heart rhythms of 16 patients simultaneously.

DEVELOPING LEADERSHIP FOR THE PLANET IN THE 1980's

This is a workshop which will enable persons to gain a greater understanding of themselves and the planet so that they will be prepared to help their fellow men and create a peaceful world. Each of us can be a leader. We can all contribute. It is time for us to find solutions and create viable positive alternatives for the good of all persons on the planet. We need good, strong, moral, open, selflessly serving leaders in business, government, media, education, and in all walks of life.

We will explore and cover how to:

- Identify qualities of good leadership
- Create a realistic goal setting process
- Recognize how to plan, visualize, and respond to life with love
- Learn the importance of meditation and inner work in developing successful leadership
- Improve our ability to effectively communicate and connect with each other
- Inspire creative solutions for our future

Bay School is 100 years old!

BAY SCHOOL, the little red schoolhouse on Highway 1, marks its centennial on Saturday with the annual Bay Day Carnival.

Festivities for Carmel's first school begin at 11 a.m., with food, games, historical displays, a clown, raffle, puppet show and birthday cake all available until 3 p.m.

Proceeds from the carnival will go toward maintenance and operation of the school, which now serves the Carmel Unified School District as a parent cooperative nursery and day care center.

The schoolhouse, two miles south of the Carmel River, opened in 1879 when the whalers living at Point Lobos sought a place to educate their children. J.W. Gregg loaned an old building on his ranch for the classroom and later sold the property for the school to school trustees for $4 in gold coin. He threw in the building for another dollar.

Of the 33 boys in the district at that time, only eight could be spared from work to attend school; 15 of 25 girls living in the district attended classes.

Because the only other local school was in distant Carmel Valley, many students walked or rode horseback from as far away as Pebble Beach to attend Bay School. The horses were pastured in the field behind the school, now ringed with a stand of eucalyptus trees.

A ROSTER of the students at Bay School reads like a Who's Who of early Carmel settlers: Hattons, Hudsons, Rileys, Allans, Machados, Silvas, de Amarals, Martins, Kodanis and Hitchcocks abound in the ranks.

The most notorious graduate, Florinda Silva, was immortalized by novelist John Steinbeck as Flora Woods in Cannery Row.

In 1952, the independent Bay District was annexed to the Carmel Unified School District. Parents were promised that Bay School would remain open, but the last 10 pupils there were soon transferred to other campuses.

The school weathered that threat to its existence when the Carmel Parent Nursery moved into the building in 1955, vacating its previous home in the Youth Center. Parents pitched in, building a new wing adjoining the one-room schoolhouse, laying a new floor and building playthings for the children.

IN 1968, responding to new state earthquake requirements for schools, a district structural engineer found Bay School unsafe for pupils.

The Carmel district decided to reconstruct the school, a project estimated to cost $12,000. Parents set to work raising the money and amassed $9,000 by 1973.

Then began another series of complications: the first plans for rehabilitating the school were rejected by the state architect's office; a new architect, Fred Keeble, recommended reconstructing the school entirely at a cost of $74,000 (later inflated to $91,000); the school board opposed spending that much on a nursery school, until confronted with more than a thousand signatures in favor of the project after a well-orchestrated publication campaign.

The district finally agreed to a tax override which could finance the project if they eventually decided in favor of the reconstruction work.

It took another two years, until February 1976, before the school board agreed to the project. A Coastal Commission permit was issued and the last lawsuit to block the reconstruction was settled in favor of the district.

The old school was demolished on March 11, 1976 and the new Bay School built and opened soon afterward.

THE JUNGLE GYM is a good place for small "potato" Gina Berryman to play at Bay School. Gina is a centennial pupil at the parent co-op nursery, since Bay School celebrates its 100th anniversary this month. Bay Day festivities mark the event this Saturday. (David Eaton photo)

Hello out there! Does anyone remember me?

Hello out there! Does anyone remember me?

My first little shop was on Ocean Avenue where the Scottish Shop is now. Do you remember the board I had tacked on the side and where the "boys" marked their height and then again when they came back from vacation. In 1943, the War and two of my boys were the first casualties. Their names are on the plaque in the park.

Do you remember the night of the evacuation when supposedly the Japanese were at the foot of Ocean Avenue? Poor Mr. Goodrich couldn't get me to budge as I told him I was unable to walk up the hill, so with black shades on window and pilot light turned off, I stayed in.

Remember the two little Henderson sisters? They came early in the morning to see if I was safe as they, too, wouldn't leave. Their reason was their dog(?) Patsy, whose aunt I was, was afraid of the dark and had never been out at night.

Dear Mrs. Winslow of the Pine Cone offering me hospitality in her home, afraid harm would come to me because I was Italian (remember the stab in the back?)

But most of all, I remember the wonderful times, the wonderful customers who became my friends. My sign on the door saying, "If you want something come get key ... I'm at the foot of Ocean." They did, and came to pay later. Remember when Ray Bolke(?) made a Dutchdoor for my shop that I had moved next to Pop Staniford's Drug store, and forgot to bring it back (got into a poker game), and people coming home from the movie that was next to Walt Pilot's ice cream parlor, who poked fun at me saying, "still waiting for customers?"

He was rounded up, and door hung.

Reading today's paper I remember when dear Mr. Leidig felt he had to raise my rent and he and his son Carmel, asked me upstairs from my shop which was now on Dolores St. to let me down easily. I was paying $75 per month and they raised me $5!

I love the mission (now basilica). I was married there. Sir Harry Downie was our best man. Father Mike's "Going Away to Ireland Party" was a sad and joyous occasion as we all knew we would not see him again. We didn't.

There were five shops (ladies) when I opened Juney Lee Dress Shop and Phil Nesbit made my dear little sign. Years later I saw it in a junk shop and almost bought it back. I sponsored a softball team and a young man named Scheider sported my name on his uniform. Mr. Sands of the jewelry shop was manager. And sometimes after, Johnny D'Amaral hurt his leg and sadness once again broke my heart.

My son, Forrest Cornwall, graduated from Sunset. Dear Mr. Holman and Mrs. Wells guided him through those growing-up years, and Mr. Miller and Mr. Timmins sponsored him in Little League and Babe Ruth. He graduated from Carmel High in '62 then went off and enlisted. He went to Japan and the Philippines. Coming back, he graduated from MPC and then on to San Francisco State to get his BA degree. He is now living in Sonora, has 10 acres, a lovely wife, and three children doing landscaping (gardening) having come back with a hearing disability. I hate WAR!

As for me, I came back to live out my days in Park Lane retirement home, but as fate would have it, had back surgery and was unable to walk, so I am moving to Modesto to be nearer to the children in a retirement home. I would love to hear from those that remember me. I see their faces and remember them with love.

I worked for the Pine Cone and helped start the children on their paper-selling on our Village streets. I worked for Comstock Associates, all helping me learn to drive a car as my leg was getting tired and now I have two tired ones!

The big story is how I came to Carmel: an old dear friend, a Mrs. Catherine Osborne, married to Lloyd, stepson of Robert Louis Stevenson, willed me all of Carmel as she had no earthly possessions but her love for the area she called home.

Since I have not been able to see Carmel, I see it in my mind's eye as it used to be. I've been told my landmarks are all gone and more are coming down every day. I go remembering as "it used to be" and taking with me fond memories of what was.

Bless all those that keep the old-time traditions and bless the newcomers who won't mar what is.

Garland stroll for Sierra Club

A leisurely stroll through Garland Park to observe wildflowers and a canyon hike near Arroyo Seco are planned this weekend by the local Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club. Everyone is welcome.

A three-mile hike along the more obscure trails at Garland Ranch Regional Park, 9 miles east of Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Road, Carmel Valley, will begin Saturday, May 12 at 9:45 a.m. Hikers will meet at the parking lot and should bring water and hiking shoes. For additional information, phone 659-2528.

A five-mile hike, which begins at the Arroyo Seco Guard Station, will parallel the river and ascend to Rocky Creek Camp with an elevation gain of 750 feet. Hikers will meet Sunday, May 13 at 8 a.m. in the Cinema 70 parking lot, Del Monte Center, Monterey, to form carpools. There will be a swim after the excursion for hikers who wish to cool off. Bring lunch, water and hiking boots. A driver reimbursement fee of $3 is requested.

For further information, phone Salinas, 1-484-1240.

Water rates for the average residential customer on the Monterey Peninsula could almost double by 1981 if the general rate increase application filed Tuesday by California-American Water Company is approved by the California Public Utilities Commission.

Monthly charges for the average residential customer using 6,111 gallons of water would go up more than $3 from $5.34 to $9.08 for 1979—an increase of about 70 percent—if the increase is approved this year. Eighty-four percent of Cal-Am's 30,000 Monterey Peninsula customers are classified as residential. Water bills are issued every two months.

Inflation and investment in a much-needed system improvement program were cited as the primary reasons for the rate increase request.

"Although we did receive assistance in financing the 1978 Canada Pipeline through an offset allowance, Cal-Am has not asked for a general rate increase since 1975," District Manager Dick Sullivan said.

"The system improvements budgeted for this year alone amount to more than $4.5 million. All of our operating expenses have increased substantially since 1975, too. Wages for our 66 employees, materials and service costs have increased and electricity has jumped 134 percent since 1975," Sullivan said.

The rate increase request filed by Cal-Am covers the three-year period 1979-81 as required by the PUC's "forward-look" policy. The water company has asked for a 19.1 percent across-the-board increase in 1980 and another 5.9 percent increase in 1981 to cover increased operational expenses and support additional system improvement projects planned for those years, Sullivan said.

Total gross investment in Monterey Peninsula water system improvements this year will be $4,527,300. In addition, another $794,000 is proposed for improvements in 1980, and more than $1 million in improvement projects is planned by Cal-Am for 1981.

Among projects budgeted for the Monterey Peninsula this year are four new wells and an iron removal plant to give the company greater access to the Carmel Valley groundwater at a cost of $2,680,000; a five-million-gallon treated water tank and bypass pipeline for Forest Lake now under construction to safeguard water quality at a cost of $950,000; automatic equipment controls at $300,000 and pipeline replacement projects to provide better water service and fire protection for $330,000.

"Cal-Am's Monterey District rate increase request covers three elements which determine our cost of providing water service. A major consideration is inflation. A second factor is the more than $9 million Cal-Am has invested in system improvements from 1976 through 1979 and the additional $2 million in improvement projects through 1981—a total of $11 million," Sullivan said.

"The third consideration is the fact that Cal-Am has been able to provide less than 2 percent return to our investors for the use of their money to pay for these expenses last year, and no return the previous two years," he added.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT of Transportation completed a small construction project at Highway 1 and Ocean Avenue last week to ease traffic congestion at the intersection. By widening and lengthening the right turn lane for southbound cars at the corner, Caltrans engineers hope motorists will be able to enter the city without slowing the flow of traffic on Highway 1.

The project cost an estimated $3,200. The idea grew out of a walkthrough with county and state officials of the Carmel area last year to survey traffic problems. (David Eaton photo)

Sunset Views:

In support of the arts

By Richard Tyler
Director, Community & Cultural Affairs

THOSE OF US involved in the arts and who gain so much from the creative processes know how valuable they are. Sometimes we forget that others do not necessarily look on creative expression as we do. What follows is an attempt to marshal arguments for people looking for practical reasons to support the arts. Dr. Wilson Riles, California Superintendent of Public Instruction, summed it up neatly when he said, "As our world becomes more hectic and mechanized, the arts are an inexhaustible source of inspiration and fulfillment for the human spirit ... The arts are no more a frill than spelling."

In 1978, California was 53rd among the 50 states and five trust territories in arts funding, spending only 6½ cents per person. If the proposed $12 million arts budget is passed by the legislature, California would be 11th or 12th in the country with 50 cents per person. New York spends $1.78 per person and Alaska $1.94.

The most recent Harris Poll in California revealed that:

- (a) 50 percent thought there should be "more creative activities."
- (b) 53 percent went to an art museum at least once a year.
- (c) 47 percent attended live performance of theater, classical music, and dance.
- (d) 51 percent wanted more arts activities for their children in and out of school.
- (e) 72 percent favored government support of the arts.

CALIFORNIA IS SECOND only to New York in the number of artists living within the state. Based on estimates from the state Franchise Tax Board, it is conservatively estimated that California's artists contributed more than $70 million in state income tax in 1977.

Arts activities enhance the economic vitality of a community. They generate revenues to hotels, restaurants, parking lots, retail businesses, and transportation systems. "The arts, rather than representing an expenditure by the city, are, in fact, seed money which generate many times its original cost in revenues for the city. In looking at the argument against cuts in cities' budgets in the area of the arts, it can be seen that what might be considered as a frill by some, is, in fact, the livelihood for many ...." The Taxpayer's Revolt and the Arts U.S. Conference of Mayors Position Paper, September, 1978.

A Fortune Magazine market research survey (September 1977) found that corporate decisions to remain or invest in new locales are influenced by the quality of living in those communities including the cultural activities available.

The financial problems of non-profit arts organizations do not stem from lack of attendance or public interest. The main reason for financial difficulties despite soaring attendance is that the arts are labor intensive. Labor and other production costs have risen while many arts organizations continue to provide their services free or charge a fee which does not cover their production expenses. The need for the arts as a source of inspiration and fulfillment of us all is argument best presented in your own words based on your own experience.

THE EIGHTH ANNUAL Ensemble Competition of the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula will take place on Saturday afternoon, May 12, at 1 p.m. in the Sunset Theater. While there are many competitions for solo musicians, the Society's is one of the very few for ensembles; and it is beginning to draw national attention. The maximum age limit of 26 years places the accent on youth. Three prizes are given: $1,000 first, $500 second, and $250 third.

Coordinating judge for this year's competition is Oleg Kovalenko, Russian-born violinist and conductor, who was recently resident conductor of the Indianapolis Symphony. Other judges include Charles Fulkerson, teacher of piano and conductor of the Humboldt Symphony, who recently retired after 36 years at Humboldt State College; Ronald Copes, violinist and assistant professor at the University of California, Santa Barbara; and Russel Howland, clarinetist, first bass player with the Fresno Symphony and Emeritus Instructor at U. C. Fresno.

The competition itself is open to the public, free of charge. On Sunday afternoon, May 13, at 3 p.m. the awards will be presented; and the three winners will perform in concert. Balcony seats for the Awards Concert will be available at the box office at $4.50 regular admission and $2.50 for students. For more information, phone 624-2993.

THE STAFF PLAYERS, the adult production company of the Children's Experimental Theater, are currently presenting George Bernard Shaw's Arms and the Man, through May 20 in the Forest Theater in the Ground. Arms and the Man, which was transformed into one of the most successful operettas under the title, The Chocolate Soldier, is superb early Shaw comedy in which he briskly cannonades two great attitudes of life—the heroic attitude toward war and the romantic attitude toward love.

Shaw pits Serbs against Bulgars in the play which was first produced in 1894 and which undoubtedly set the stage, so to speak for the depiction of the glories of war and the romance of war heroes which was to affect generations to come. The Balkan States provided the rich and colorful background for this story of a soldier who prefers to carry food and chocolates in place of ammunition. Through the comments of the soldier, Shaw points out the appalling senselessness of war.

The Staff Players will perform each Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 8:30 p.m. General admission is $4.50 on Friday and Saturday and $4 on Sunday. Tickets for students and senior citizens are $2.50 on Friday and Saturday and $2 on Sunday. For reservations, phone 624-1531.

A COMPREHENSIVE six-week course into the basics of yoga practice, its uses and goals, will begin May 23, at 7 p.m. at Sunset Center. This course is designed to be a very practical and relaxed way to raise the energy levels of the body and the accompanying techniques to channel and maintain the sensitivity of the mind.

Formulated as a non-religious presentation open to all philosophies of consciousness; it will include personal instruction in Hatha Yoga Asanas (exercises), breath control, and meditation techniques. Such topics as weight control, diet, male-female relationships, and yoga psychology will be discussed.

Each session will be divided into two parts of one hour each. The first hour will be the exercises or asanas in a relaxed non-forced fashion. The second section will be devoted to lecture, question and answer and discussion. The instructor will be Sukhmandir Singh Khalsa who has been actively teaching yoga for the past 10 years at U.C. Berkeley, U.C.L.A., Golden West college, University High School, and many assorted private centers. He has studied with many teachers including Yoga Bhajan, Swami Satchitanawda, and Pir Ualit Kman. The cost for the six sessions will be $17 or $4 per session taken individually. For more information, phone 372-8339.

ANOTHER BACH FESTIVAL, the Bach Choir Festival, will take place in Bethlehem, Pa. for two weekends.

R.L.S. STUDENT WINS STUDY TRIP

A SUMMER STUDY TRIP to Quebec has been won by Carol Cunningham, daughter of Alan and Barbara Cunningham of Carmel Valley, as first place prize in a competition sponsored by the American Association of Teachers of French. She competed against 1263 other students from 20 schools.

Carol is one of four students at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach who took first place awards in the ten levels of the competition. Winners also included Lisa Barker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Barker of Pebble Beach, who placed first among students in their third year-second semester of French study.

AND MANY HAPPY RETURNS

How many people are able to celebrate their 82nd birthday at a meeting of the Carmel Forestry Commission? Ray Taylor did just that last week when he was surprised with a champagne birthday cake at the start of the commission's regular meeting.

Ray, who graciously shared his cake with the audience (one person) and the press (another one) and the other commission members (four of them), said he would like to be on the commission a few more years. He has already served 13 years at that post, including five years as chairman. Before that he was a research forester for the U.S. Forest Service and lived many years in Alaska.

CHAPMAN COLLEGE NAMES GRADUATES

Adrienne Dawn Meckel of Carmel Valley will receive a master of arts degree in school counseling in the 1979 graduation ceremony at Chapman College Residence Education Center, May 18.

Three other Carmel residents will receive bachelor of arts degrees in health services: they are Kathryn Kandler, Helen Kenney White and Sandra Ellen Williams.

SMYTHES WELCOME JAMI JEANISE

Jami Jeanise Smythe is now at home in her Dolores Street residence following her April 19 arrival at Community Hospital. She joins parents Don and Anita Smythe and brother Donnie Frank, 6.

She also has been welcomed by paternal grandmother Mrs. Dorothy Smythe and paternal great-grandmother Mrs. Marian Shaver, both of Carmel, Mr. and Mrs. William Marbach of Monterey are the maternal grandparents.

Jami Jeanise (her name is by way of a friend and a television show) weighed in at 6 pounds, 14 ounces, and was 20 inches long.

Don is a deputy sheriff for Monterey County.

PUBLIC HEARING ON BUSINESS RENT REGULATION IN CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA

City Council Chambers
Sat., May 12, 1979, at 2:00 P.M.

The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea needs your help.

SHOULD BUSINESS RENTS BE REGULATED?

The City Council believes that high commercial rents are responsible in part for a deterioration in the character of the City's commercial district and for loss of businesses providing services for residents. Your information and constructive ideas are needed to help the City decide what to do. We are interested in facts about rents and reasoning for or against rental regulation as well as alternative solutions.

Please come to this special meeting which, for your convenience in attending, will be held Saturday, May 12, 1979, at 2:00 P.M. at the City Council Chambers, east side of Monte Verde between Ocean and Seventh Avenues.

Rent control hearing Saturday

By BRUCE HOROVITZ

IS COMMERCIAL RENT control a lift to tenants or a kick in the pants to landlords?

Carmel tenants, landlords and residents will have a chance to speak out on the controversial subject at a public hearing Saturday at 2 p.m. at City Hall.

The unusual hearing will be aired before an ad hoc rent control committee appointed three weeks ago by Carmel Mayor Gunnar Norberg.

The intent of the special hearing is to "gather facts," according to City Attorney George Brehmer.

Carmel commercial rents have been frozen since April 16, when the council reacted swiftly to a proposal by a Carmel property owner to raise commercial rents 500 percent, and more. The council later voted to extend the 30-day rent freeze to 60 days. It is scheduled to expire June 16.

Along with the rent freeze, the council unanimously voted for a moratorium on business use changes in the commercial areas. A public hearing on that moratorium is scheduled before the Carmel Planning Commission, Wednesday at 4 p.m. at City Hall.

"WHERE DO WE GO from here?" Chairman Howard Brunn asked the ad hoc rent control committee on Wednesday of last week.

Committee members include: Brunn and Leslie Gross, City Council; Robert Stephenson and Sandy Swain, planning commission; Glen Leidig, landlord; John Cunningham, tenant; and Art Strasburger, resident.

There were many more questions than answers at the two-hour session.

"Everybody wants to enjoy Carmel. That's where the problem comes," said Stephenson.

"I hope you don't see it as an insoluble problem," responded Brunn.

Stephenson shook his head. "I see it as a problem," he repeated.

The tone of the session was not entirely pessimistic. An air of near-adventure seemed to permeate the room after Brunn commented, "We have to come up with something innovative. This has never been done before."

With the help of a Berkeley attorney, Carmel officials will attempt to draft rent control legislation that will stand up in court. Legal attempts at rent control in other California cities have failed. The courts have generally ruled that the controls did not grant enough leeway to landlords.

"We have to come up with some hard reasons why this is necessary in Carmel. There are plenty of people who say it isn't," Brunn commented.

Myron Moskowitz, the attorney hired by the council to draft rent control legislation, is scheduled to meet with the Carmel Planning Commission and the ad hoc committee at separate sessions on May 23.

MAYBE PARTIAL rent control is the answer, suggested Strasburger.

"Where the landlord and tenant can agree (on rental), maybe we shouldn't interfere. We should look out for situations where the tenant is intimidated by the landlord," Strasburger commented.

Brunn called that a "super thought." Strasburger charged that the present 10 percent annual ceiling on commercial rent hikes is "unrealistically low." He said there are some cases where 100 percent rent increases "might be reasonable."

The rent controls have resulted in a batch of unanswered legal questions. The panel briefly discussed a few.

Are residential uses in the commercial district subject to rent control?

Brehmer said they are not.

As the questions got tougher, Brunn conceded: "I have no magic wand to wave."

Responded Gross, "Mr. Chairman, I wish you did."

In order to support the rent control legislation, the committee will seek a history of rents and leases in Carmel.

SOME FORM of rent control is the only way "we can stop absolute raw speculation," Strasburger said.

"There is no other way to go," agreed Miss Swain.

"I'm not sure I share that," responded Glen Leidig, one of Carmel's largest commercial property holders. "Basically, I don't like rent control. Perhaps I can be turned the other way."

Brunn commended Leidig for his reasonable rents. "If all commercial property owners were like Glen (Leidig), we wouldn't have to be here today," Brunn said.

There is little public interest in the commercial rent controls, said Steven Jacobs, a managing partner of the Carmel Plaza. He pointed out that only two of the Plaza's 67 shops are resident-serving. But all fall under the same rent control.

"Rent control affecting 90 percent of the non-service uses has to be justified with strong public interest. We don't believe that public interest exists," he said.

Jacobs suggested that the city subsidize resident-service businesses. He said the city should find space for them on the town's "periphery."

"You already have Sunset Center. Many of those rooms are seldom used," suggested Maggie Hays, the Carmel Plaza manager.

"That's a cultural center," responded Brunn.

"This is not the time for landlords and tenants to bicker. We all have to get together and play nice," said Beverly Goldberg, a Carmel resident.

BUT THE RENT controls and the commission's actions came too late for one Carmel tenant.

The Swiss Tailor has moved.

Stanley Hrbac, owner of The Swiss Tailor shop moved to a new Carmel location. Formerly located in the May Court on Mission between Fifth and Sixth, he moved May 1 to a smaller shop on Eighth and Mission. It is north of Sunset Center, near Knapp Mill and Cabinet Co.

Hrbac, 48, told the Pine Cone on Thursday that he was "very lucky" to find a new location in the city.

He didn't want to move, however.

"The only reason I moved was because of the rent hike," he confirmed. On June 1, his rent was scheduled to jump from $175 a month to $650 per month, an increase of 371 percent.

Hrbac said he will pay a more affordable $250 per month rent at his new location. It is smaller, though, and he fears he may lose some customers there.

The owner of the Swiss Tailor is not Swiss. Hrbac is Czechoslovakian. He purchased the 25-year-old business eight years ago, and decided to keep the name, Swiss Tailor. Hrbac said he has worked as a tailor for 32 years.

The Aptos resident commutes to work here daily. "I like the people of Carmel," he said. "I think of them as my friends."

Council moves to strip Collins' powers

sure don't want it," he grumbled.

Brehmer cited legal flaws in the proposed revision. Changes would be needed, he warned.

"The whole thing is a mess. Is there anything in there you don't have to change?" Brunn asked.

Brehmer replied cautiously. "The question is so general, I have trouble addressing it."

"The city attorney is probably trying to protect our ass," Brunn responded to Brehmer's statement.

THE PROPOSED ORDINANCE would tear huge chunks of authority away from the city administrator. It would:

- Repeal his powers to hire and fire Carmel department heads. Those department heads were not defined in the proposal.
- Require him to report in writing to the mayor every week.
- Require written excuses prior to his own absences that exceed 24 hours.
- Delete any situation where the city administrator could appoint an assistant city administrator.
- Strike any reference to the word "powers" from the present ordinance. Three references to the city administrator's "powers" would be deleted.
- Modify the present law that forbids individual councilmen from giving orders to city employees.

THE AD HOC committee also proposed—but later rescinded—a revision outlawed by State Code.

That proposed revision would have deleted a clause that now specifies no councilman can hold the city administrator's post within one year of council service.

Under the proposal, a member could step off the council, into the city administrator's shoes. The city administrator is salaried at about $30,000 a year. Councilmen are not paid.

The Pine Cone asked Brown, Tuesday morning, if he was interested in the city administrator's job.

"Hell, no, not me," Brown replied. "But who knows? Maybe down the road a situation might arise where the council decides a former council member would make a good city administrator," he said.

Do you think Jack Collins is a competent city administrator? Brown was asked.

"Yes, I think he's competent," he answered. "But what we're looking at is the job description," Brown stated.

AN AUDIENCE EXCEEDING 100, mostly jeered at the council's actions Monday evening. At one point Norberg asked Police Chief William Ellis to quiet the crowd.

No one, however, could quiet the irate council minority.

"What we're seeing here is a mess. This is punitive, unproductive legislation," Brunn raged.

Mrs. Arnold stood fast with Brunn.

She said she was "kissing good-bye" to the council harmony she hoped would prevail when she ran for office.

"This set of changes ... was drafted by one council member," she said, referring to Brown. "It is a grade B movie tactic, and a personal vendetta," she charged.

"Why try to approve something so obviously flawed?" Brunn posed to Norberg.

"It is not flawed in my view," Norberg responded.

Brunn looked across to Brown.

"Could you state your intent, Mr. Brown?" he demanded.

Brown did not answer. He sat with his hands clasped.

Norberg spoke. "This would make it possible for a council at some time ... to have an action and say in the case of promotion or dismissal of department heads."

Carmel department heads have stated unanimous support for Collins. A letter voicing that support was read at the Feb. 5 council session, by Police Chief William Ellis.

But no department heads spoke Monday evening. They sat quietly, shaking their heads in despair.

"It wasn't necessary (to speak)," Ellis said. "We already stated our views."

BROWN BROKE HIS silence to inform the council that he has community support. "People have stopped me on the street," he said, "who agree with me." Brown told them not to attend the council session, "because of this very situation I predicted," he said.

Heckling followed that remark.

But it was applause, however, that followed most public comment.

Sam Farr, chairman of the Monterey County Board of Supervisors, said the council should "stay at arm's length" from the daily operation of the city. That should be left to the city administrator, he said.

"It takes a lot to bring me out of retirement," said Hugh Bayless, the former city administrator. "It is a mistake to tamper with what you have," he said.

William Doolittle, president of the Carmel Citizens Committee, called the proposal a "step backwards." He said it would "hamstring" the city administrator.

"To have all the shots called by an old man trying to force the town into his own design is wrong," charged Jack Wagner, a 10-year Carmel resident.

Norberg and Brown "think alike and want to push alike," complained Gladys McCloud, a 35-year resident.

The proposal is a "travesty," said resident Melvin Kline. It would "make a mockery" of the city administrator's seat, agreed Royal Adams, a Carmel resident.

"I think you're going to do it, in spite of overwhelming opposition," piped Ben Lyon. "Jack Collins is subordinate to you, but you are subordinate to the people of Carmel," he said.

Eugene Hammond, the former mayor, sent a letter that called the proposal, "a blunder back into the dark ages."

THE COUNCIL HAS more important things to do, than to re-evaluate the city administrator, Brunn said. He listed a dozen city issues that should take precedent.

Collins' authority "is far from being removed," Norberg countered.

"It is not the position of the City Council to bow down to a chief administrator," Norberg contended. He said the city administrator "is supposed to do exactly what the council wants to see done."

A series of motions and substitute motions followed the discussion. Brunn and Mrs. Arnold attempted in vain to stall action.

"I'd go on all night to keep you from voting on this," Brunn said.

PADRE SPORTS

By JAY POSNER

THE CARMEL HIGH varsity baseball team clinched a tie for the Mission Trail Athletic League championship last Friday by shutting out North County High 5-0. Earlier in the week, King City High had ended the Padres' hopes for an undefeated league season by nipping the Padres 4-3.

The Padres, now 10-1 in the MTAL (not including Tuesday's game at Pacific Grove High), will close out their regular season tomorrow afternoon at Palma High and next Tuesday at home against Robert Louis Stevenson School. Both games will begin at 4 p.m.

Last Tuesday in Carmel, King City took advantage of some Padre mental errors and a couple of close calls that went their way to edge Carmel and end the Padres' nine-game MTAL winning streak.

The Padres took an early 1-0 lead in the third inning when Mark Clark led off with a single and stole second. After Paul St. Germain walked, John Lucido bunted into a force to set up Dave Spear's RBI single to center. Neil Vandervort walked to load the bases with only one out, but Glenn Riley got Mike Odello to pop to second and Mike Wecker to line out to short.

King City tied the game in the sixth, when with one out, Trevor Walker singled and moved to second on a walk to Mike Adams. Tim Bernal followed with an RBI double to left-center to tie the game at 1-1.

Looking for an inning-ending double play, Padre coach Monty Feekes ordered pitcher Pat Kelly to walk Riley and pitch to Mark Banuelos. Banuelos made Feekes look like a genius when he hit a one-hopper to short that turned into a Lucido-to-Clark-to-Wecker double play.

Carmel appeared to win the game in the bottom of the sixth when they scored two runs. Wecker opened with a single, stole second, and scored when Riley's pickoff throw went into centerfield and Danny Escobar let the ball roll through his legs.

Tim Sherman followed with a walk, stole second, and moved to third on Brent Eagling's bunt single. Phil Ross relieved Riley and struck out Clark, but St. Germain laid down a perfect squeeze bunt to score Sherman. Lucido appeared to beat out a chopper to third that would have scored Eagling, but the base ump called Lucido out and the inning ended.

HOWEVER, THAT CALL was only the beginning of the Padres' troubles as Jody Armer led off the Mustang seventh with a long home run to right centerfield.

Kelly retired pinch-hitter Mark Grim on a grounder to third, and Doug Breschini followed with a bloop to centerfield that the home plate ump—not the base ump—ruled Sherman had not caught. Feekes decided he had seen enough, and he replaced Kelly with Buz Fulton.

Fulton proceeded to walk Tom Bassetti, and after Walker fled to right, Fulton walked Adams and was replaced by Lucido. Lucido, who was making his first appearance in over three weeks and has a history of wildness, walked Bernal to tie the game at 3-3. Ross came up next and he worked the count to 3-2 before Lucido threw a pitch that looked like a strike, but was called a ball.

In the bottom of the seventh, with one out, Vandervort walked and stole second. Ross then hit Odello to put the winning run on first and bring up Wecker, who had two hits already in the game. Wecker smashed a grounder to Breschini at short, who tossed to Banuelos at second for the force on Odello. However, Odello's slide knocked over Banuelos and his throw rolled towards first. Vandervort took off for home and slid carefully under Bernal's tag, but the ump called him out and set off a Mustang victory celebration.

"We made some horrible mental mistakes that cost us the game," Feekes said two days later. "But take nothing away from King City, they fought back against us twice."

Feekes was also referring to the first game between the two teams, a game in which Lucido had to strike out Armer with two out and the bases loaded to save an 8-7 Padre win.

FRIDAY, AGAINST NORTH COUNTY, sophomore Greg Raynes hurled two-hit ball for six innings and the Padres scored five runs in the first four innings in an easy 5-0 victory.

Raynes, now 7-0 for the season, was never in trouble as the Condors could manage only a bloop single in the first and a line single in the sixth before Lucido came on to pitch the final inning. Lucido surrendered a hit and a walk before striking out Ernie Vasquez to clinch a tie for Carmel's second consecutive MTAL title.

Carmel's first run scored with two out in the first on a triple by Wecker and a double by Vandervort. In the second inning, the Padres' second run scored on a double steal between Lucido and Matson with Matson scoring.

The Padres added two more in the third on Clark's sacrifice fly and a throwing error by Vasquez. Carmel's final run came on Wecker's sacrifice fly that scored Lucido, who had singled, gone to second on a balk, and stolen third.

Lucido's stolen base was one of 13 stolen by the Padres in the two games. Feekes appears confident that Carmel will keep on running, hopefully through the Region IV playoffs and up to Stanford for the central Coast Section finals.

THE PADRE GOLF team moved into first place last week by winning two matches at Pebble Beach Golf Links.

Carmel, now 5-1 in the MTAL and 8-2 overall, knocked Hollister High out of the top spot by defeating the Balers 336-352 last Tuesday. Curtis Jones and John Pirotte paced the Padres in the 12 hole match with scores of even par 47 and one-over-par 48, respectively.

Jones continued his consistent play Thursday by firing another 47 in Carmel's 316-356 victory over Palma High. The Padres' other low scores came from Andrew Whittacre (50) and Pirotte (52).

Carmel will resume MTAL play Tuesday when they travel to Spyglass Hill to challenge RLS.

IN TENNIS ACTION, the Padres will close out their regular season tomorrow afternoon at Palma. Last week, Carmel remained undefeated by destroying Pacific Grove and Hollister by identical 6-1 scores.

Adam Sherburne, Erick Collas, Anthony Galang, Frank Collas, and Rico deRouen all won singles matches against P.G. and the doubles team of Jan Doelman and Erik Dormody was also victorious.

Against Hollister, coach Dave Chaney brought up six junior varsity players to replace the six Padre players who left for a weekend tournament in Sacramento.

Galang, Doelman, Bill Brandt and Dormody all won singles matches, while the doubles teams of P.J. Marto and Peter Lloyd, and Tony Rowedder and Andy Laing also chalked up wins.

Master Plan panel OK's CV Ranch site switch

THE CARMEL VALLEY RANCH developers would be allowed to move some homes in the project to a portion of the property hidden from Carmel Valley Road under a recommendation approved last Thursday by the citizens committee drafting a new Carmel Valley Master Plan.

In a separate, somewhat confused vote, the committee decided to take no stand on the construction of 100 homes in a 200-acre "land reserve" on the ranch.

That vote may be reconsidered.

Under terms of the Specific Plan approved in 1976 by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors for the project, the Landmark Lands Co. development group of Oklahoma has in-concept approval for 400 homes and a 100-unit resort lodge on 1,500 acres of the 1,700 acre ranch.

The property is located east of Robinson Canyon at Mid Valley.

The plan also provides that another 100 homes may be considered on a 200-acre "land reserve" once the new master plan is adopted.

Environmentalists on the master plan committee contend that means the panel has veto power over development of the reserve.

Planning Commissioner William Peters of Carmel Valley, the non-voting chairman of the committee, said last week that although that is what he intended when the Specific Plan was drafted, it was not written in the final language of the plan.

As a result, Peters said, he believes the committee has no authority to comment on the project, other than indirectly through the land use policies of the new master plan.

Keehn. "That doesn't bother me too much."

THE DENSITY TRANSFER was originally proposed by Landmark president Jerry Barton, who told the committee last summer the switch would leave the lower areas of the property looking less developed and thus more pleasant in views from Carmel Valley Road.

The upper portion of the property is not in the California-American Water Co. service area, however, and would have to be supplied water from the as-yet unproven Tularcitos aquifer.

This could prove a barrier to development there.

Corky Matthews said it is her feeling that "they will never build up there."

Still, she and Mrs. Smithson opposed the transfer fearing it could open the door for approval of the 100 units envisioned in the land reserve.

The two women were unsuccessful in pressing for a policy statement either opposing any development there or saying the 100 units should be held in abeyance for several years because of uncertainty about the environmental impact of the report.

It was Mrs. Matthew's contention that the master plan committee has an obligation in the ranch Specific Plan and was on the agenda of tasks for the 13-member master plan committee when it was appointed in 1976.

A MAJORITY of the master plan committee apparently sustained that viewpoint last week, although not all of the 10 voting members there cast ballots on the issue. It may be reconsidered when the committee meets again.

But the committee did endorse, on an 8-2 vote, support for the developers moving some of their already approved-in-concept units to the land reserve.

This would mean fewer homes in the large meadow area visible from Carmel Valley Road.

Committee members said if all other conditions of the master plan are met, it would be better for the development to occur in an unobtrusive location than in the open fields visible from the valley road.

Committee member Nancy Burnett agreed to support that position only if the developers were required to provide more open space in the visible areas. She said she would oppose the motion if it meant only that the golf course homes would not be clustered as close to each other as now planned.

Lucy Smithson complained that with the potential for 100 homes on the upper area already, transferring density within the property could create a "hell" of crowded homes in a small area.

"We're creating heaven and hell, only hell's up there," she said.

"Hell's out of sight," commented Chris

POSTMISTRESS RESIGNS

The resignation of Stella Vincent as postmistress in Carmel to be effective June 1, has gone to Washington; and with it also the resignation of her deputy and longtime friend Helen Parkes. For 14 years these two women have been connected with our postal service and have watched the village grow, and measured that growth by increased numbers of post office boxes.

During that time Dolores Street came from a sandy, scrubby residence street to be the imposing business section of today. The removal of the post office from Ocean Avenue to where it now is started the change.

Almost on the heels of the resignation of Miss Vincent went the application of William L. Overstreet for the position of postmaster. Overstreet is one of the best known men in Carmel, having started the Pine Cone in 1915.

A LITTLE HORSEBACK JAUNT

The Pony Express has passed but a horseback ride from Stanford to Carmel, though unique, is certainly to be thought of. And someone did think of it and did it as well.

In Carmel now as the guest of Fritz Wurtzman on Mission Street is Professor Mahr of Stanford University, who rode down to Carmel on his favorite horse a few days ago. It took the Professor three days to make the trip and undoubtedly he took in beauties of California landscape between Stanford and Carmel never discovered by any motor conscious traveler ever to cover the distance between the two points.

Professor Mahr comes from Fritz Wurtzman's home in Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany.

COAST HIGH SCHOOLS IN FIRST ATHLETIC MEET

Today and tomorrow the Coast County Athletic League holds its first meet at the Monterey High School athletic grounds. Over 500 boys of the various county high schools will take part. An elaborate program has been issued for this meet which is the first of its kind to be held on this peninsula.

There are eight schools entered in the meet: Gonzales, King City, Hollister, Salinas, Santa Cruz, Watsonville, Pacific Grove and Monterey. The total number of entrants are 250. There will be 24 events and two relays. The captain of the track team is Jimmy Hopper of Carmel who with Scott Douglass will compete in the mile run.

Milton Roach and Glenn Leidig, both of Carmel, will run in a relay. Glenn also will throw the discus and the 8-pound shot and is entered in the broad jump. Bain Reamer will throw the 8-pound shot, and Frank Meeks will throw the javelin.

LIVING SCENERY FOR FOREST THEATER

Why haven't we done it before? In seasons past the Forest Theater productions have called for profuse decorations in the way of cut greens, small trees and trailing vines which have, of necessity, been brought by truck from the hills and forest for the purpose. This has been an expense, a deal of hard labor and has carried with it the risk of contact with poison oak, treacherous axe and other perils surrounding the unskilled woodsman.

No more of that if Elliot Durham's idea is a success. Durham has built boxes to be sunk on and surrounding the out-of-door theater stage. In these boxes he has planted fast-growing vines. So henceforth when fairies flit, actors amble or play princesses pose, they will do so amid fresh growing greenery and living bloom.

In passing it might be added that more than all the beautiful sets which during time have been built for Forest Theater productions, none has excelled for loveliness to gaze upon than the bare stage banked in natural greens with star studded purple skies for canopy.

BOARD RESHUFFLES EXECUTIVES

The appointment of Stuart Mitchell as full-time superintendent of the Carmel Unified School District and Warren Edwards as full-time principal of Carmel High School was made effective Wednesday night at the regular meeting of the Board of Trustees at the high school.

Such action had been under consideration for several months because of increasing needs of the community with its rapid growth. The appointments will be effective as of July 1.

The eventual aim of the district, it was pointed out, is to have a full-time recreation person who could handle not only the physical education work at the school, but also direct the summer recreation program, the school camp, after-school sports and supervise a playground on Saturdays and holidays.

CHURCH OF WAYFARER AUTHORIZES BUILDING PLANS

Preliminary steps were taken on Monday evening toward the construction of the new building for the Church of the Wayfarer. By a unanimous vote of the members, George L. Wilcox and William D. Concolino were engaged as architects for the new building and instructed to present preliminary plans for approval of the membership.

This action came at the climax of the annual meeting of the congregation with the president, Dr. Charles N. Pearson, presiding. The new building will contain more than 6,000 square feet of floor space, and provide greatly-needed space for worshippers on Sunday and for recreational and fellowship activities during the week.

JOE HITCHCOCK PASSES ON

Joe Hitchcock, a well-known old-timer, original Carmelite, whose grandfather planted Commodore Sloat's flag in Monterey, passed on at 88 on May 8.

He was a great teller of tales of early Carmel and the old days in Carmel Valley where he was born and to which he returned in 1945. Space does not permit recalling all the stories—of how the Pine Inn rolled down Ocean Avenue, of knowing such people as Jack London, about the 17 Mile Drive Chinese settlers—but his many friends will never forget them, nor the sight of him on his horse or with his dog.

BOARD CONSIDERS AIDES, NEW COURSES

The use of teacher aides to supplement staff teams and allow greater individual help to students was overwhelmingly endorsed by the Tulare County staff who have used them, but turned down by River School staff as expressed by Principal Edwin McCurry, whose 14 teachers were afraid the aides would require too much time to train.

Supt. Harris Taylor had been authorized by the board to field test the pattern of a two-teacher three-aide team which would yield an adult-to-student ratio of one to fifteen.

Surfer calls Carmel Beach 'a mess'

Beach. Commissioners argued that the beach is clean. They said a study should proceed any recommendation.

"I'm really distressed," Cross commented, when contacted by the Pine Cone after the session. "It really bugged me that they wouldn't even consider doing anything," he said.

CROSS IS A SURFER. A student at Monterey Peninsula College, he surfs at Carmel Beach daily.

Three weeks ago, he observed a six-year-old girl injure her foot on broken glass at the beach. "That got my goat," he told the commission. "I don't want to see that happen again." There are piles of broken glass on the beach, he insisted. The city should hire more workers to clean it up, he said.

"That's beyond our recommendation," said Matt Smith, the chairman.

"It's absolutely unnecessary," agreed Commissioner Bruce Crane. Crane said the Public Works Department does a commendable job of beach cleanup.

"That's a copout," charged Cross.

"What makes you such an expert?" asked Commissioner Raymond Taylor. "We've been working on this for years."

"You've done nothing," Cross volleyed back.

Attempting to mitigate the glass problem, Taylor commented, "I cut my foot on clam shells, too."

"I can live with clam shells," Cross countered. "But I can't live with glass."

MOST OF THAT broken glass is from beer bottles. Many are tossed down from the cliffs above. Some are intentionally busted on the beach and left as "booby traps," Cross said.

He suggested that alcoholic beverages be banned from the beach.

City ordinances indicate they are presently not allowed, but that law, however, is not usually enforced.

Smith said Cross had "overlooked" the amount of time commissioners have devoted to beach improvement studies.

Cross replied that his criticism was not a personal attack. "I'm just looking for results," he said.

"All it would take is one more person to clean up once in a while. It's the easiest thing in the world," he said.

The real problem is the masses of people who use the beach, said Gregory D'Ambrosio, the city forester.

"I don't believe that one or two people could get all of the broken glass off the beach, if they worked every day," D'Ambrosio said.

"I could do it myself," Cross replied. He said he picks up glass every time he surfs.

"How the hell would you get it all?" asked Taylor.

"Not by picking it up just twice a week," Cross snapped.

D'Ambrosio accused Cross of "jumping the gun." He said if the problem proved to be serious, the city could consider banning glass from the beach. It is "unfair" to expect government to clean up after the public, he stated.

"Is this town broke?" Cross pressed. "Don't they have any money?"

The commission said it would take no action. That is when Cross marched out.

"This has been a tremendous insight into inactivity," he charged before heading out the door.
